EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

YES, it is true that the cream of the base ball nine is usually found in the pitcher.

IT is said to be definitely settled that Dr. Parker, of London, will be called to Plymouth church.

THE Dude is passing away, and with him the Mugwump. Evidently both have been subdued.

JUDGE WILLIAMS will run thousands ahead of his party vote in all the counties north and northwest.

ENGLAND and the Democratic party favor Free Trade in the United States. The alliance is suggestive.

PERHAPS Mr. Robert T. Lincoln would be the most available candidate for President in 1888. But he says he wont.

THE schooner, Niagara, was wrecked in Lake Superior on Wednesday and all on board—fifteen persons—perished.

CAPTAIN HART has the love of the soldiers all over the State. He started in the ranks and won his rank by plain merit.

FRED GRANT, who is also a "son of his father," is talked of as a Republican nominee for Secretary of State in New York.

THE great gas well at Lawrenceville, Ind., has played out and Cincinnati sits hopelessly wrapped in her garments of sackcloth, soot and ashes.

THE Republican convention at Harrisburg nominated a brave soldier who wore the blue. Mr. Cleveland bestows his special favors on those who wore the gray.

MEMORIAL day is also fishing day for the Nation's chief executive. Still the work of assorting the rebel flags prior to their proposed surrender went on all the same.

THE Ohio Democracy adopted a free Trade plank, while those of Pennsylvania insisted on one to be constructed to suit convenience. It is only a question of frankness.

IT is just as reasonable to suppose that your house is better protected by removing the locks, and bolts, and bars as to assert that our industries would be better promoted by Free Trade.

THE best evidence of the excellent work done at Harrisburg by the Republicans is that not a word has been said against the personal characters of the gentlemen placed on the ticket.

IT is not only in Centre county that the Democrats are frightened and fear a revolution. In Virginia and Maryland they are about ready to give up their long period of supremacy.

Not an off, But a Pivotal Year.

It has become an accepted political fact, with all observers of American politics, that the weakness of a National Administration will be shown in the first and second year following its inauguration. The first year is readily accounted for in the disappointment which came from failure to secure office. These disappointments are intensified in the second year, when "hope deferred has made the heart sick;" but if the Administration is strong in its make-up and policy, it can readily ride these breakers. By the time the third election is reached disappointments have been discounted, and policies command supreme consideration. The election on the 8th of November next is the third following the inauguration of Cleveland, and on that day the general effect of his Administration and of its policy will be passed upon by the people.

These things explain why this is not an off, but a pivotal year. It is more, far more than a skirmish preceding a great battle. With the National Administration it is a question of "holding the fort;" with the Republican party it is a question of continuing a very favorable investment of the Presidential citidel until such time as they can dash over its ramparts.

The results this year may lead to a change of standard-bearers, and possibly to a change of policies, though the latter are difficult to change within any given decade. With results in many Democratic States like that given by Kentucky this year, Cleveland will have to retire behind his declaration that one term is enough. With the Republicans holding their majorities in States like Pennsylvania, and New York, Indiana and New Jersey, Cleveland's availability will be seriously questioned, if not rejected, by his own party, yet his friends will cling to the belief, as all men in office do, that they represent the only element which can hold the organization and win.

Democrats who are absolutely hostile to Cleveland will go slow in voting a Democratic ticket this year. It will be an off year to them, but to no other class. It will be a pivotal year to every Democrat in office, for upon its result will depend his continuance in office. It will be a pivotal year, from every standpoint of view, to the Cleveland Administration, and it will be the year in which it will throw off its civil service mark and fight for its life. All that power and money can do for it will be done, and it will attempt surprises even in States as firmly entrenched as Pennsylvania. Indeed, the Republican of Pennsylvania, who calculates that there is a safe Republican majority of 40,000, and that effort is not therefore necessary, will, if the fullest possible effort is not employed, waken up with Pennsylvania advertised a year in advance as a debatable State in the great battle of 1888. The battle of 1887 is pivotal to both parties alike, save that the Republican candidate for President cannot be determined with any certainty in advance of the coming November's result, and that its policy will be for Protection whether it wins or loses this year. It is pivotal to the Republicans, who are out, in all that opportunity can afford; it is pivotal to the Democrats, who are in, since a surprise in a State like Pennsylvania this year, would probably give them a continued lease of power. They would everywhere accept such a surprise as an assurance of continued power.

Is there any danger of such a surprise in Pennsylvania this year? Not if the Republicans are carefully forewarned. Their cause has grown in popularity in exact proportion as Democratic objects have become plain. In all States save Pennsylvania and Virginia, the Democrats fearlessly announce their friendship for Free Trade; in the two States named the growing tendency toward Free Trade must be recognized in spite of ingenious straddles, once accepted with a laugh, now resisted by a great and aggressive wing of the party with a sneer. So that the material issue which divides the two great parties, more sharply divides them than ever before. The Republicans are everywhere making a plain battle for Protection; the Democrats are almost universally battling for Free Trade. If this issue stood alone, freed from other and abstract questions, it would not be possible to surprise the Republicans of Pennsylvania. All should remember, however, that 6,000 Republican office-holders in Pennsylvania have been changed to that many Democratic officeholders, and that the 2,000 offices yet to be handled by Cleveland and his Cabinet will yet represent thrice that many hopes. With this power will come activity, and in a State capable of casting a round million of votes, Republican stay-at-homes amounting to nine per cent. of the vote of each district might bring a Democratic victory. An average of twelve Republican voters, in each district, staying at home, is a surrender to the Democracy! To prevent this the Republicans who want to be in line next year must take their places and mark them with their ballots.

While the Republican party in Pennsylvania can this year be defeated, there is no reason why it should not with proper effort, poll one of its finest majorities, It is a simple choice between inaction and activity, and the more plainly this is understood the less will be the danger. And to the end that it may be universally understood, we need the active aid of each and every active spirit. The ticket deserves just such aid. Judge Williamsis as eminent as any jurist in the Commonwealth; Captain Hart has had a long and wide experience as an accountant and financier. In qualifications both lead any other candidates, while both are clean men and sound Republicans. The ticket and the cause should inspire the best efforts of all Republicans.

HON. W. E. GLADSTONE, in declining the invitation to attend the centennial in Philadelphia, wrote this sentence: "As the British constitution is the most subtile organism which has proceeded from progressive history, so the American constitution is the most wonderful work struck off at a given time by the brain and purpose of man." This is true. The British constitution is the result of years of development. The American constitution is a compesition written on the impulse of the moment. It remains intact exactly as it was written. Twelve amendments were attached to it before 1804. The others were made necessary by the results of the war. The convention which adopted the original instrument sat in Philadelphia from May 25 till September 17, 1787.

THIRTY-SIX thousand miners in the Lehigh, Dauphin, Columbia and Shamokin coal regions laid down their picks and shovels last Saturday night and struck for 8 per cent. advance in wages. The company officials consented to increase the wages 7 per cent. One of the leading strikers expresses the opinion that if the difficulty is not settled within a week it will not be adjusted for four or five months. A meeting will be held on Wednesday, when there is every reason to believe that the very slight difference of one per cent. will be satisfactorily settled. The miners in the Schuylkill region will continue at work.

A CHICAGO Democratic paper impudently asks what business the Republican office-holders of Washington have to crowd around the President and gaze admiringly at his lovely wife. The President of the United States, we answer, is the President of the whole people, not of the Democratic party. Consequently the Republicans of Washington have the same right to do homage to the Nation's ruler that any other citizens of the country have. As for admiring his wife, that is a tribute man everywhere in the universe is allowed to pay beautiful womanhood.

GLADSTONE'S letter acknowledging, but declining the invitation to attend the centenary of the American constitution is an eloquent and statesmanlike epistle, but we would not advise any of the pupils of the Bellefonte schools to take his penmanship (as given in the fac-similer published in the Philadelphia Press) as a copy-book model. There are several editors in Bellefonte who can write as legibly as the "Grand Old Man."

THERE is a possibility that Mr. Carlisle's seat in Congress will be successfully contested by Mr. Theobe, who says he can prove that he was elected and has the first right to it. Anyway, Mr. Carlisle's path to the speakership will not be as easy as it has been heretofore, as it will not do to retain a man in that position whose election is tainted with fraud.

O'DYNAMITE ROSSA is now charged with not being a good Fenian. This would seem like removing the last vestof goodness, but let him not despair; he is still good—for nothing.

An Irate Duke.

The Duke of Marlborough leaves Newport with the threat that "I shall collect a few of the best reported specimens of the gutter gazetteer of this country and have the same framed for the edification and benefit of the thousand or more American tourists who are kind enough to honor my country house in England every year with a visit." If the Duke would accompany the collection with some of the cotemporary expressions of opinion concerning the character of the first Duke of Marlborough it would doubtless lend much to the historical value of the curiosities to be seen at Blenheim. But it is not likely that the threat will be carried out. So much frankness regarding the moral character of the first and last Churchills, as is implied in preserving public expressions about them, is rather more than is to be looked for from one who has shown that he can be made to wince by the free notice of the facts in his notorious career. There is much more point in the Duke's remark that we "calmly ignore the vices that lie patent at our own door;" but true as that is, it does not make the Duke any the less black.

SPEAKER CARLISLE is awakening to the fact that he has a contested election on his hands. The Labor candidate, Thobe, claims to have been elected by several hundred majority, and has filed with the Clerk of the House of Representatives a voluminous mass of evidence in support of his claim that Mr. Carlisle and his party associates cannot well ignore. Were the contest purely between a Republican and a Democrat, Mr. Carlisle might treat the claim with silent contempt, and it would not be the first time that a Democratic Committee on Elections would ride rough shod over everything. It happens now to be a Labor man, representing a factor in coming events that must be treated with proper decency, and this is why Mr. Carlisle and his friends begin to feel a little nervous. Thobe has been at work, strictly to the letter of the law, and his evidence is said to be extremely damaging. Carlisle has procrastinated in the hope of partisan vindication and filed no evidence, and now realizing his bad predicament, is going to fall back on technicalities and ask for an extension of time to meet the case. It is a clear-cut case between labor and aristocracy, and up to this time labor has decidedly the advantage. Of course the Republicans, always actuated by a high sense of honor and manly dealing, are determined that Thobe shall have fair play and an even chance, and if duly elected to represent the Sixth Congressional District of Kentucky, shall have his seat, or the country shall know the reason why.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND wants and expects a re-nomination, not because his party heartily endorses his administration, for they do not, but because of the more potential reason of the lack of Presidential timber. The Democratic party hasn't a great deal of material to select from and no one knows it better than Mr. Cleveland. Circumstances on this account are decidedly in his favor, and he realizes the fact, and of course will turn it to the best advantage. Having completely gobbled up his party, and secured beyond a peradventure his re-nomination, there is no earthly reason why he should undertake now to pose as a political martyr, as in the recent six column interview. The party has done a great deal for Cleveland, and it will be compelled to do more. A shepherd is the greatest need of the democratic flock, and no one is more available than Cleveland, and while he has patronage to bestow, and has finally cast out the mugwumps, he will have no difficulty in securing all the party can bestow.

A Silly Insinuation.

To elect Mr. Daniel Rhoads Associate Judge is simply to empower Judge Furst to do exactly as he pleases.—Watchman.

The Watchman is certain that Mr. Daniel Rhoads will be elected, and its twaddle like the above will only serve to increase Mr. Rhoad's majority. The sentence is an attack on the honor of Mr. Rhoads and we would be ready to compare the high character of Mr. Rhoads with that of the Watchman before any community acquainted with both. If Mr. Daniel Rhoads is elected he will maintain as much independence in his relations with the President Judge as any Democrat possibly could—nay, he will maintain more, because we do not suppose there is a Democrat in the county who is as independent and as intelligent as Mr. Rhoads. To say that he will be influenced by Judge Furst to a greater extent than an associate judge should be influenced by the president judge is to impute to Mr. Rhoads weakness of of will and character, of which his record is sufficient assurance to the contrary. We are sure the people of this county can trust Daniel Rhoads, as they can trust no other man, not to permit politics or any other such consideration to influence his actions in court. But such high principle is perhaps above the mental powers of the Watchman to understand.

CLEVELAND'S six column interview in the New York World is as weak as it is long. He expresses no decided view upon any question, but to nearly each and every inquiry as to probable views of the Administration upon given topics, he avoids committal by saying that there are two sides to that issue, etc. A more flimsy paper purporting to give the views of a public man was never before presented to the American public. It bears upon its face, not the weakness of the interviewer, but of the interviewed.

MT. WHARTON BARKER, of Philadelphia, and other gentlemen have been granted by the Chinese government the exclusive right to erect and operate telephones in that dominion, and also to carry on a banking institution. The grant remains good for fifty years. The telephone part may be valuable and it may be valueless. That all depends on whether the Chinese are ready to put the telephone to their ear and talk to their friends who may be miles away.

THE Democrats complain because the Tariff revision of 1883 increased the surplus. A system that protects home labor and at the same time fills the home treasury to overflowing is a double blessing. Free Trade or a Democratic Tariff, would beggar the farmer and bankrupt the land. As this is a nation of workmen, it is difficult to decide which is preferable.

WHEN a Republican administration in Indiana turned the State Treasury over to the Democrats three years ago it contained a surplus of more than $560,000. Since then the money has been squandered, the State debt has been increased $4,000,000 and $2,000,000 are required for the immediate needs of that State.

INSTEAD of hanging out Mr. Cleveland's portrait at Wheeling to insult the soldiers it would have been in better taste to have displayed the picture of the substitute he placed in the army when he was drafted, and who died recently. As he had his proxy in the ranks he should have placed him on the canvas.

A PROTECTIVE Tariff gives our people work at remunerative prices. Free trade transfers the labor and reward to foreign countries. One fills our outgoing vessels with articles for the world's market, while the other unloads the world's production on our shores. Do you wish to buy or sell?

SINCE 1885, in the Kentucky legislature, the Democrats have lost 18 on on joint ballot and the Republicans have gained 10. At present the Democrats have 101 and the Republicans 98. With a corresponding gain the Republicans should have a majority in 1888.

WE are inclined to believe that there will be an extra session of the Legislature this fall. The demand for one in the Spring or in Mid-summer was all folly, but it would be well to have one this Fall and to settle this revenue question in time for its operation next year.

Poetry.

ON THE LAKE.

One breezy afternoon we went
  On Bonny waters sailing,
When lo! the summer world seemed bent
  Upon a like regaling:
The dawn-awakened lillies dreamed
  Among the padded billows,
And dreaming gained a zest we deemed,
  From undulating pillows.

Bold dragon flies spread 'gainst the gales.
  Wings frailer than of feather,
As if but filmy fairy sails
  Were fit for windy weather.
What graceful swiftness beyond words
  Were nimble swallows showing!
Ideal sailing, where most birds
  Must be content with rowing!

The restless bees in gusty air,
  Like seaweeds fixed in ocean
Swayed back and forward, glad to share
  The toss of tidal motion.
And fleecy clouds sailed thro' the blue
  Of airy seas deep-sided,
And fair and far, Dian's canoe
  Through calmer ether glided.

At length the floating sun slipped down,
  A cataract of glory—
Disaster dire, which brought the frown
  Of night o'er waters gory;
Nor idly earth the loss bewailed
  While draped in shades of sorrow,
She set her lights and boldly sailed
  To seek a bright to-morrow.

HER TITLE DEEDS.

Inside the cottage door she sits
Just where the sunlight, softest there,
  Slants down on snowy kerchief's bands,
On folded hands and silvered hair.

The garden pale her world shuts in,
A simple world, made sweet with thyme,
  Where life, soft lulled by droning bees,
Flows to the mill-stream's lapsing rhyme.

Poor are her cottage walls, and bare,
Too mean and small to harbor pride,
  Yet with a musing gaze she sees
Her broad domains extending wide.

Green slopes of hills, and waving fields,
With blooming hedges set between,
  Through shifting veils of tender mist
Smile, half revealed, a mingled scene.

All hers—for lovingly she holds
A yellowish packet in her hand,
  Whose ancient, faded script proclaims
Her title to this spreading land.

Old letters! On the trembling page
Drop, unawares, unheeded tears,
  These are her title deeds: her hands
Spread through the remains of by-gone years.

Our Story Teller

MARRYING AN HEIRESS.

"I tell you," said Mr. Howard Fitz-Smythe to his faithful friend and ally Montague Duckworth, "she's a regular aristocrat! A highflyer—and she's smitten with me."

"I don't believe it," said Mr. Duckworth frankly.

"That ain't extra polite of you, I should say," remarked Fitz-Smythe, his equanimity somewhat ruffled, "Why shouldn't a young lady in a brown-stone Fifth avenue mansion be smitten with me if she takes a fancy that way."

"Because you don't find calicoes at the silk counter, or domestic sheeting in the same line with jackonets or dotted Swiss," retorted Mr. Duckworth, who being a clerk in a dry goods emporium on Sixth avenue, naturally drew similes from that line of business.

"Oh! gammon!" said Mr. Fitz-Smythe. "Love scorns all distinction. And how is she to know that I am in the grocery business on Third avenue. Don't you see, Duckworth, she takes me for a swell."

"Then, for all I can see," argued the plain and straightforward Duckworth, "you're trying to win her affections on false pretenses."

"All's fair in love or war," muttered Mr. Fitz-Smythe, a trifle discomfited, as he pulled his long mustache. "Now, just look at the reason of the thing, Monty. I walk on Fifth avenue smoking my cigar. A young lady on a balcony loses her fan. I pick it up with a bow and ascend the steps to present it to her. She thanks me and blushes. I remark that it is a fine evening. She assents and asks if I will have a glass of iced water. I drink it and retire. The next evening I walk there again, in front of the five-story brownstone front, with plate-glass windows, thousand-dollar lace and damask draperies, and a statue of Appollo in the south bay-window. She smiles and nods. She invites me in. We get acquainted. I flatter myself that I've made a conquest.

"Duckworth, old fellow, when I marry rich I'll buy my dress goods at your establishment. I ain't one of the kind to forget old friends just because I got an upward turn on Fortune's wheel."

"Humph!" grunted the incredulous Duckworth. "When, indeed. And besides all this, I thought you were engaged to a blue-eyed little girl down in the country."

Mr. Fitz-Smythe twisted himself about nervously.

"Oh! that's quite an old affair," said he. 'I dare say Bella Brown is as tired of it as I am. I couldn't think of marrying anyone—anyone at least without a snug property of her own—for years to come."

"You didn't use to argue in that way," said Duckworth, dryly.

"I'm wiser now, I've seen more of the world. How can a married man live decently in New York on a salary of six hundred a year?"

"I don't know exactly'" said Mr. Duckworth, "but I shall soon find out. I'm going to be married to Mary Ann Allen next week."

"What, the little book-folder?"

"Yes, the little book-folder."

"Oh, pshaw!" said Fitz-Smythe, loftily. "Better drop her and try your luck among the aristocracy. I shall soon be able to introduce you right and left, you know."

"Thank you for nothing," said Montague Duckworth, with a grin. "I'd rather be an honest man than to marry rich!"

"And do you mean to say that I'm not an honest man?"

"Ask Bella Brown," said Mr. Duckworth.

Mr. Fitz-Smythe was a liltle more particular than ordinary in his toilette that evening. He tried several neckties, before he was quite suited, pinned a moss-rose bud into his button-hole and quite deluged his pocket-handkerchief with patchouli before he set forth. For he had definitely resolved that evening to make a bold push for it and propose.

The Fifth avenue drawing-rooms were half lighted by a single cluster of moony gas-globes, through the magic light of which marble statues gleamed faintly, paintings caught a fantastic glow and sofas and royal purple satin faintly visible.

Miss Etherege was at home—reclining gracefully in the shell-shaped depths of a Turkisk chair, fanning herself with one of the gigantic modern implements that look more like an umbrella than a fan.

"I thought you weren't coming at all to-night," she tittered.

"As if I could keep away from you!" gallantly retorted her lover.

"That's all very well, but you needn't expect me to believe all you say!" said Miss Etherege, with vivacity.

"Will you believe me, dearest," cried Mr. Fitz-Smythe, dropping on one knee, "when I say that I adore you?"

"My goodness gracious," cried Miss Etherege, retreating behind the fan. "This is the last thing in the world that I expected."

"But you will not punish my presumption by a frown, dear Maria?"

"How on earth did you know that my name was Maria?"

"Love's intuition, my dearest, and your embroidered pocket-handkerchief told me so!" responded the gallant swain. "Sweet one, is it to be 'Yes?'"

"I really don't know what to say," hesitated the young lady. "Papa is out of town and——"

"Speak but the word, my Maria," persisted Fitz-Smythe, and "and we will be married at once before the cold and calculating hand of the world can part us." (For, of course, he reasoned within himself, when the old gentleman comes home he'll knock my little arrangement higher than a kite. These aristocrats are so mercenary and unfeeling.)

The fair Maria wavered. Evidently she was half inclined to accede to his bold proposal.

"Ought I to be thus rash?" she murmured. "Ah, Howard, tell me. Leave me not to the too partial persuading of my own weak, fond heart!"

"Darling, be mine!" cried the lover—and the upshot of it all was that Mr. Fitz-Smythe fetched a bald-headed old clergyman, who lived around the corner, and who made them one in less time than it takes to dispose of a tutti-frutti ice cream.

Fitz-Smythe's heart throbbed high with triumph, as he ostentatiously forced a $20 bill on to the parson, and dismissed him. His life's vision was realized at last; he had married a Fifth avenue heiress! Let the papa come home now as soon as he chose—he couldn't unmarry them.

As he stood looking around at the elegant apartments that were so soon to be his home there was a loud ringing at the hall bell, a rattle of trunks on the blue and white marble floor. His bride turned pale.

"Oh, my!" cried she. "Hide yourself somewhere, Howard! Get under the sofa! Run behind the curtains! They've come back!"

"Who have come back?" demanded the astonished bridegroom. "And why should I run behind the curtains or get under the sofa? I'm not a burglar am I?" Or a spoon-and-fork thief? Who are they, my own Maria? Speak!"

"Its Mr. and Mrs. Crawford, who own the house," squeaked Mrs. Fitz-Smythe.

"Aren't they your father and mother?"

"Dear me, no! Pa drives a cart down at South slip—and I am Mrs. Crawford's maid, left in charge of the house while they were away at Newport. Good gracious me! who ever supposed they would have come back so soon? And without as much as a telegram?"

Mrs. Fitz-Smythe, formerly Miss Marie Etherege, was discharged at once. Her bridegroom was ordered off the premises, on peril of the police—and Mr. Fitz-Smythe found himself, to use an inelegant but forcible expression, "done."

"You have deceived me!" he cried wrathfully, to his bride, who had whimpered her nose into a red and swollen condition not at all beautifying.

"I never told you I was the young lady of the house," sniffed Maria. "I suppose I had a right to sit on the balcony evenings when I was left in charge. And I ne-ne-never supposed you would be mean and mercenary enough to seek me for aught besides myself. However, we're married now and you'll have to make the best of it."

And it was for this that he had broken the heart of blue-eyed Bella Brown, down in Rockland county, who would have a nice farm of her own at her decrepit uncle's decease, and who loved him from the very depths of her affectionate little heart. Truly Montague Duckworth, who had just taken Mary Ann Allen to Coney Island to spend the day—all the wedding trip they had—was better off, wiser and more of an honest man than he.

He had married in haste and now he is repenting at leisure.

The Great Musical Prodigy.

Since the recent action of the courts in taking Blind Tom from the custody of Mr. Bethune, his former life-long friend, manager and protector, has brought him prominently before the public in the newspapers, a few facts concerning his childhood by one who knew him then may not prove uninteresting. He was born near the city of Columbus, in Muscogee county, Ga., of slave parents, the property of Gen. James N. Bethune, at that time editor and proprietor of a newspaper called the Corner Stone, but in exactly what year I do not know, as he was some 6 or 8 years, or it may be a little older, when I first met him in 1855.

My first meeting with him was in this wise: I had just married a few months previously and one of Gen. Bethune's daughters had been one of our bridesmaids. On our return from a Southern tour we were invited to dine at Gen. Bethune's. During the day music was proposed and upon the piano and flute my wife and I played a tune which we had heard for the first time at one of the theatres in Philadelphia. At the first sound of the music Tom came rushing into the parlor in a single garment, so common among the little negroes of the South, and while the music was going on he fell down upon the floor, rolled over and turned somersaults, clapped his hands, groaned, and went through divers motions, really more as if he were in pain than experiencing emotions of pleasure. As soon, however, as the last note was played he sprang up, rushed to my wife, and, pushing at her, cried out eagerly.

"Miss Fannie (he knew her well) please git away! I wants ter play dat tune?"

And jumping upon the piano stool he played it off perfectly, although I know he had never heard it, it having recently been published and had not yet come South. To test him then others played tunes he had never heard, and he would immediately play them off with both hands, just as he had heard them. He seems to have loved all sounds, whether musical or harsh. He loved to do the churning for the family, just to hear the monotonous sounds of the dasher in the cream. He has even been known to pinch and otherwise tease babies just to hear them cry.

One habit of his seems to flavor a good deal of romance, yet it is true. Being blind he would stay away from home listening to the songs of birds as they flitted from tree to tree till he would get lost in the woods, unable to find his way back. Upon such occasions the most practicable way to find him would be for Mr. John Bethune, his first manager—to go out into the woods and play his flute, when Tom would hear it, come to the sound, and thus get back home.

Although idiotic he was, even at that early age, endowed with a wonderful memory. After spending the day at Gen. Bethune's, as related above, it was over six years before I saw him again.

The war was going on, and one day on taking a train I unexpectiedly found Mr. John Bethune with Tom on the train. I addressed Mr. Bethune and then Tom, not dreaming that he would recognize me, when, to my infinite surprise, he said:

"How'd ye, Mr. Sharp: how's Miss Fannie?"

To which I said: "Why, Tom, how do you know me so well?"

He replied: "Oh, I knows you 'en Miss Fannie, too; don't you remember when you was at our house and played this tune?" and he whistled the very tune mentioned above.

On that trip I discovered how the absence of sight had rendered all his other faculties more acute, for as we dashed along at perhaps thirty miles an hour he could always tell whether we were passing woods or open fields, houses, cuts, embankments, bridges, or almost anything else. I remember we entered a small village on the railroad, when I asked Tom what was outside, to which he promptly replied: "A heap of houses."

There was always a warm friendship between Tom and the whole Bethune family, and it is an injustice to take Tom from their custody, for he was better with them than he will ever be with any one else. They raised him from his infancy, and unless he has changed—which it seems not, from the papers—he prefers to remain with Mr. Bethune.

The Professor's Summer Vacation.

I noticed in the account of the terrible railroad accident in Illinois that attempts had formerly been made to wreck the very same bridge where it occurred, and that once a watchman was kept there for six weeks. I happened to speak of this to a railroad official yesterday, and he gave me a curious case of something of the same kind that occurred on the Erie Railway. The Erie road is a sort of highway for tramps, and they are a perpetual menace to the safety of the passengers and a constant source of anxiety to the officers of the company and the trainmen. At one place—I forgot where, now—the line runs through a very lonely country. There are no houses for five miles; there are dense woods on one side, at least, of the road, and about half way of the distance there is a bridge. Twice this bridge has been fired by tramps, and each time a limited express had a narrow escape. The company consequently decided to build a hut and put a watchman in it. It was in summer, and an excentric college professor applied for the position. He liked solitude, he said, had a fancy for seeing trains go by, and wasn't afraid of the tramps. Accordingly he established himself there with an oil stove, a small arsenal of weapons, and a big dog. Twice every day a freight train stopped to leave provisions, and there was a spring of cool water near his hut. He returned to his work in the fall much refreshed by his quiet life and with a monograph in his valise which he sold at a good price to some philosophic review.

A Parting Scene.

Did you ever hear two married women take leave of each other at the gate on a Summer evening? This is the way they do it:

"Good-bye!"

"Good-bye. Come down and see us right soon."

"Yes, so I will. You come up right soon."

"I will. Good-bye."

"Good-bye. Don't forget to come soon."

"No, I won't. Don't you forget to come up."

"I won't. Be sure and bring Sally Jane with you next time."

"I will. I'd have brought her up this time, but she wasn't very well. She wanted to come awful bad."

"Did she, now? That was too bad. Be sure and bring her next time."

"I will; and you be sure and bring the baby."

"I will. I forgot to tell you he's cut another tooth."

"You don't say! How many has he got now?"

"Five. It makes him awful cross."

"I guess it does, this hot weather. Well, good-bye! Don't forget to come down."

"No, I won't. Don't you forget to come up. Good-bye!"

And they separate.

Bank Examination.

Bank examiner and bank president looking up at bank from sidewalk.

President—Yes, that's the bank vault in there. Two millions in that.

Examiner—Two millions? Wait a minute. (Puts it down on the proper blank). Go on.

President—You can just get a glimpse of a canvas bag behind the paying teller. There's $60,000 in that.

Examiner—Yes, yes, go on.

President—And in that japaned box by the cashier are $200,000 in silver certificates.

Examiner—Go on, I've got it down.

President—Well, locked up in two or three more boxes, which you can't see are steen hundred thousand securities of various kinds. And—and that's all.

Examiner—Excellent, sir, excellent. Your bank makes an excellent showing. Everything counted and found exactly right.

President—Here's your fee, won't you come in and have a cigar?

Examiner—No, thanks; I want to examine twenty-three more banks this afternoon. Good day.

In the Hurry of Speech.

In the hurry of speech, and often in our very anxiety to be polite, some of us are liable to occasional slips, which may have the ludicrous effect of putting an entirely different construction upon a sentence than that intended. For instance, upon arrival at your entertainer's house, you say: "I beg a thousand pardons for coming so late," and are met by your hostess with the words: "My dear sir, no pardons are needed; you can never come too late.—Chambers's Journal.

At 104 Years and Never Worried.

Miss Phoebe Harrod, of Newburyport, Mass., a maiden aged 104, is about to celebrate her birthday. Of all the persons who have spoken and written on the great question of longevity Miss Harrod becomes us nearly to the true solution as any one. She says that her only reason for her great longevity is that she never "worries."

This is true philosophy. One of the profoundest essays which the subject has called forth was based on the laconic saying "don't fret." The poor soul that frets itself need not hope for long life or peace on earth. Another production of great ability on the same subject was based on the not less apt saying, "make sure of all the fun you can." Neither of these sayings meant what the poor fool did who adopted for his motto, "while we journey through life let us be jolly by the way," and filled a drunkard's grave before the journey was half ended. Equanimity of temper, freedom from "worry," and the wholesome enjoyment of rational fun, with temperate living and industry—these are bound to secure whoever practices them all the years that can be reasonably expected.

We have not yet heard of the professor of the art of wholesome fun or how not to fret, nor of the philanthropist who has endowed an institution for expanding these great virtues, but in this progressive age they will surely come along, if not by these titles by some other having the same signification.

Miss Harrod has lived by the true rule of life and here she is with 104 years secure, and no one knows how many more to come. The account says she is a devout woman, at each meal invokes a blessing—a most excellent preliminary, but not enough observed, to secure a good appetite and sound digestion. No wonder she is spoken of as "the gentle lady of the century,"—the woman who never worries.

Miss Harrod never married. Probably that was owing to her never having found the man who did not fret, the rarest of mortals and bound to live to a ripe, happy age.

Brevities.

While the summer girl is at Nantasket breasting the wave, her good old mother stays at home and steams the currant.

A fellow named Carney fell through a Philadelphia sidewalk last spring, and has become one of the suers of the city.

"Do make yourselv at home, ladies,' said Mrs. Smith to her visitors; "I am at home myself, and sincerely wish you all were."

Visitor—"How much your hair is like your mother's!" Little Girl—"Oh, no it isn't! Mamma's comes off, and mine don't!"

"Then you don't like hash?" said the landlady sternly. "I don't object to hash," explained the boarder. "It's rehash I kick at."

A Dakota Indian purchased a telephone last week and tried to grind coffee in it. He also tried to scalp the man that sold it to him.

An ingenious Boston man has invented a missile to throw at umpires, which can be furnished by the ushers in any quantity and at small cost.

New York Girl—"The feet of the Statue of Liberty are six feet long!" Chicago Lady—"Six feet long? Why, she must be nearly 20 feet high then?"

"And so your father has gone to a missionary station?" "Yes; we are quite alone now." "Don't you miss the directing hand of your household?" "Oh, mother don't go."

A Philadelphia paper speaks of "an eccentric stove dealer" of that city committing suicide by cutting his throat. He must have been insane. No sane man would think of dealing in eccentric stoves.

Everybody ought to know, by this time, that riches have wings; and, when you hear that an unfortunate cashier has suddenly departed at night for Canadian fields, be generous enough to imagine that the riches have unwillingly carried the man, and not the man the riches.

A Holiday For the Wife.

Give your wife a vacation. She needs one. Little cares are harder to bear than great responsibilities, and she has many more cares than her husband, and sometimes as great responsibilities.

A woman's work is never done. And modern life has increased and intensified it. Cares have multiplied faster than convenience. Life is more complex, its demands are greater and more numerous, society more exacting. Who needs a vacation, if he does not? And she cannot get it at home. The more quiet and restful the home is to you, the more evidence that it is a care if not a burden to her. A housekeeper can no more take a vacation in her home than a merchant in his counting-house. Even though her absence occasions inconvenience, give her an occasional vacation.

Early Training for Children.

Usually mothers think it is early enough to begin training a child when it has passed its first year, often its second. The cunning little ways that, coming from a midget just able to crawl, are so irresistibly funny, become very naughty tricks when the child is two years old, and one day the poor baby is frowned upon and scolded for actions that have heretofore been laughed at and often followed by rapturous kisses of delight from mamma. But Baby's habits have been formed young as it is and it has to unlearn, which is a very hard process for grown people, who see the reason for it, but harder for a little, unreasoning being, who only understands that it is being smiled at and loved, or frowned upon and chilled without knowing why.

Don't Laugh at Nervous People.

Their sufferings are very real, although you, with your vigorous physique and strong nerves, can scarcely believe it. Rather suggest the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters which, in removing every trace of dyspepsia, and regulating the liver and bowels, strikes at and extirpates the most prolific cause of chronic nervous trouble. That nerve-shattering disease, fever and ague, is among the formidable ailments, to the removal of which this remedy is specially adapted. Nervous prostration, resulting from prolonged mental or physical effort, is also a state of the system where the intervention of this tonic is very desirable, more particularly as its use is to quiet and relax the tension of over-wrought nerves. The Bitters are invaluable in rheumatism, neuralgia and kidney troubles. Employ no substitute.

Medical, Etc.

How is Your Liver?

is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy Liver. When the Liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues; a feeling of lassitude, despondency and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. Simmons Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy Liver than any agency known on earth. It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy.

NEVER BEEN DISAPPOINTED.

As a general family remedy for Dyspepsia, Torpid Liver, Constipation, etc., I hardly ever use anything else, and have never been disappointed in the effect produced; it seems to be almost a perfect cure for all diseases of the Stomach and Bowels.

About School Readers.

From the DAILY NEWS of Saturday.

DAILY NEWS:

The brief note in the NEWS of Friday signed by the three asterisks and headed "of interest to citizens" is a fearful misrepresentation of facts. The article was written by a director and when a director makes statements about the business of the board he should tell the truth, and give the reasons for what is proposed to be done by the board.

We have only one series of readers in our schools, and the meeting this afternoon is for the purpose of adopting another series or a portion of another series of readers for use in the schools in connection with or rather as supplimentary to those now in use. A reader, to be used as supplementary to the one now in use, has been wanted by the teachers of our schools for the last four or five years. The reason for it is this: All the series of school readers published are made for the District Schools, more to suit the convenience of the ungraded rather than the graded school. In our graded schools we use certain readers; that is, the 1st, 2d, 3d, &c., &c., in certain grades. Scholars in these grades, in a school term of eight months, have been compelled, simply because the board made no provision for them to do otherwise, to read and re-read again and again through the same reader, not only during the same term but for two or three terms in succession, as the same, 2d, 3d, and 4th readers are used in two or three different grades.

Patrons of the schools have complained, (and justly so) bitterly of this state of things. The teachers, (and especially the principal) have repeatedly urged upon the board the necessity of adopting a portion of another series of readers to relieve the difficulty and enable the pupils to make some progress in reading. The necessity for this is, to every fair-minded and right-thinking man, very great. No series of books has been adopted in our schools for many years. Those in use were revised and very much improved by the publishers. Two years ago the board made an even exchange of the old one in use for the revised series published by the same house. Now it is proposed to adopt a portion of another series to be used in connection with, and as supplementary to those now in use. No change of books is proposed by anybody in or outside of the board. The whole question is—will, or will not, the board size up to the demands and necessities of our schools?

Respectfully,
D. F. FORTNEY.

Four Men Burned to Death.

BOSTON, September 7.—About 1 o'clock this morning the schooner War Eagle, loaded with naphtha, was lying near the wharf opposite John Cunningham's oil storehouse, near the Chelsea bridge. Four men were on the deck and one below. Suddenly there was a puff of black smoke followed by a tremendous explosion, which threw the deck of the vessel into the air. In the midst of flame and and smoke were the bodies of four men.

They were hurled high above the schooner and then fell back into the flames. The fifth man jumped overboard and was drowned.

The flames quickly spread to Cunningham's house, which was soon destroyed. Meanwhile the burniug hulk drifted around against the drawbridge and burned away the draw. This shut off the Boston fire department and prevented it getting to the Chelsea side of the bridge. The names of the men on the schooner have not been ascertained.

The Veterans Capture Shenandoah.

SHENANDOAH, Pa., September 8.—Twenty posts of the Grand Army of the Republic were the guests of Watkin Waters post of this place to-day and made the celebratton of Grand Army Day a great success. This afternoon two thousand veterans marched to martial music through the principal streets which were handsomely decorated. At the convention of the Grand Army of the Republic Bloomsburg was selected as the place for holding the next assembly. A camp fire was held this evening in the theatre and addresses were made by Auditor General Stewart, Chaplain Sayres and Thomas H. Kay, of Philadelphia; Department Commander Harper, of Pittsburgh, and Senior Vice Commander John E. Giles. The theatre was densely packed. The town is grandly illuminated to-night.

LONDON, September 9.—A hastily summoned Cabinet meeting was held to-day. It is believed that general business was discussed, the present difficulties in Ireland being largely predominant.

The G. A. R. to Parade.

PHILADELPHIA, September 9.—Commander Harper, of the department of Pennsylvania Grand Army of the Republic, has issued an order for a Grand Army demonstration in military parade next Friday. Paragraph seven of the order is the cause of no little comment. It reads as follows: "In passing the reviewing stand, or while being reviewed by Lieutenant General Phil. Sheridan, none but post commanders will salute. Past colors will be tipped." As the parade will be reviewed by President Cleveland and General Sheridan will be in command of the line it is claimed by some veterans not Grand Army men, however, that the name of President Cleveland should have been inserted in that paragraph of the order and that it is a slight at the chief magistrate in not doing so. Grand Army men, however, are all of the opinion that the matter was an oversight and that no slight was intended.

The Picnic of the Veteran Club.

About five hundred people from this place and vicinity departed on the special train to the picnic of the Veteran Club of Centre Co., at Coburn. At every station along the road other passengers joined the excursion and the number was almost doubled when the train reached the place of destination.

A drum corps accompanied the excursionists. The members of the club wore their uniforms and the entire affair had a decidedly martial appearance. As many more veterans and their friends came from the other direction and the surrounding country, and fully two thousand people thronged Everett's Grove. Every arrangement had been made for the day's pleasure by James P. Coburn, Captain Van Valin, and other patriotic persons of that locality. Col. James P. Coburn welcomed the veterans in his usual eloquent and happy language. The dinner, which consisted of everything to tempt the appetite on such occasions, was thoroughly enjoyed. Quite a number of people from Bellefonte went to the picnic ground on the 2 o'clock train, where their presence added to the pleasure.

From Lower California.

On Saturday we saw and read a letter from Dr. Thomas R. Hayes, in which he gives more glowing descriptions of the climate of Lower California. For instance, the winter prospect which the residents of that part of the country have is exceedingly pleasant. He says that at present the roads are dusty and the landscape has a brown appearance. This is because for three months or longer there has been only one slight rain. Despite the fact that such a long dry season has prevailed, every thing grows most luxuriantly, the immense depth of the soil supplying all vegetation with abundance of moisture. The fruits and vegetables are large and juicy. He says that in November the rainy season will begin, which will give everything a fresh, green appearance. It is on an average only about 8° degrees colder in winter than in summer, and the grass is green and flowers blossom all through the year.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetation remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after testing its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human sufferings, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this receipt, in German, French or English, with full direction for preparing and using. Jay Gould's Capacious Maw.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—It was reported in the stock exchange to-day that Jay Gould had bought the Baltimore and Ohio telegraph lines, the consideration given being $3,500,000 in Western Union stock. Jay Gould was on Wall street for a good part of the day and held a conference with the members of the Baltimore and Ohio syndicate for over an hour and a half. President Green, of the Western Union Company, refused to speak in regard to the matter. One of the representatives of the syndicate, admitted, however, that the report was only premature, and that the sale was inevitable. What the terms were he refuses to state.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 19.—President Bates, of the Baltimore and Ohio telegraph, in an interview to-night, positively denies the rumor that the telegraph system had been sold to the Western Union. He says that no negotiations are pending that are likely to result.

To be Held for Murder.

At the hearing of Luther Shaffer, John Johnston, Essic Kline and James Kline, in Lock Haven on Friday afternoon, enough evidence was obtained to hold all of them for court, on the 26th inst., when they will be tried for the murder of the Culveys at Cherry Run. Thus, there are two charges against them—murder and robbery.

KASKINE, (THE NEW QUININE.)

Balance emerging from Darkness.

GIVES Good Appetite, New Strength, Quiet Nerves, Happy Days, Sweet Sleep.

A POWERFUL TONIC that the most delicate stomach will bear.

A SPECIFIC for MALARIA, RHEUMATISM NERVOUS PROSTRATION, and all Germ Diseases.

THE MOST SCIENTIFIC AND SUCCESSFUL BLOOD PURIFIER. Superior to quinine.

Rev. Wm. Lucas, Rector Grace Church, Ravenna, O. writes: "I cordially endorse Kaskine as being just what you claim, an excellent substitute for quinine, with none of its bad effects. Mrs. Lucas had a serious form of malaria, and was confined to her bed for months. Kaskine had her up and around in a few days, and in a short time cured."

Living in the malarial districts of Maryland I drugged myself with quinine and other remedies without avail. I was greatly reduced when I heard of Kaskine. Fighting in Ireland.

LONDON, September 10.—All was quiet throughout the night and to-day at Mitchellstown, the scene of yesterday's rioting. All the persons who attended yesterday's meeting have returned to their homes. Fifty-four constables were injured to such an extent that physicians' services were required. One hundred and fifty civilians were also injured. Another person has died from the effects of injuries received during the rioting yesterday at Mitchellstown.

The police at Mitchellstown assert that the trouble there yesterday was due to the nationalist leaders shouting for the mob to hold together. The nationalists are exultant over the good fight they made. A Tipperary boy broke through a square of twelve policeman and fought them single handed. The police finally overpowered him, but the mob made a rush and rescued him from his captors. The police paraded this morning A majority of them wore bandages over the wounds they received yesterday. Fourteen policeman who were injured during the rioting were carried to the hospital.

In the house of commons to-day Mr. Sexton appealed to the government to give such justification as they could for the murderous acts at Mitchellstown yesterday. It was beyond doubt, he said, that the bloodshed had resulted from the wanton attack of an armed force upon a body of citizens engaged in the exercise of their undoubted constitutional right of public meeting. On every previous occasion application had been made for the accommodation of a government reporter and had never been refused. This time no application was made, but another course was adopted whose apparent object was to excite the passions of the people and provoke them to violence. (Parnellite cheers.)

The Sand Lot Shouter.

NEW YORK, September 11.—The union labor party, which is after Mr. George's scalp with as much vigor as the socialists, intend to explode a bomb-shell under the anti-poverty prophet shortly. "There will be some remarkable developments during this campaign," said G. D. Lennon, who is the "boss" of that organization. "Dennis Kearney will be in this city in the course of a couple of weeks. He has papers and documents in his possession that will show up Mr. George in a light which will not make him the angel that he now is in the minds of his followers. We have done everything we could to bring about a unity of the labor forces, but in their blind folly the George men have refused to listen to reason and we now have the spectacle of two state labor tickets and three county tickets. George will not poll one-third of his vote of last year in this county, and he will get no votes in the state."

The arrival of Dennis Kearney will, in all probability, lend a picturesque character to the campaign which will make it interesting. Kearney came east about four years ago, advocating high freight rates as a means of putting an end to the evils under which labor was supposed to suffer, but when it was discovered that he was in the pay of the Union Pacific railroad company the trades unions refused to have anything to do with him and he was denied the floor of the Central labor union. It is said that the bomb shell which Kearney intends to throw into the George camp relates to the prophet's political career in California.

Great Storms in Arizona.

TUCSON, A. T., Sept. 11.—The storms of Thursday and Friday were the most severe ever known in this section. Five miles of the Southern Pacific track between this point and Benson was washed away. Two large bridges were entirely destroyed. The telegraph wires are down and in some places are imbeded ten feet in the sand. The steel rails are carried a quarter of a mile down the river and are scattered for miles down the stream. The Southern Pacific trains are being run over the Atlantic and Pacific road.

Washouts are also reported all along the line from Tuscon to Yuma. From parties in from San Pedro and Rillit rivers it is learned that the flood is the worst ever known in Arizona, and many old land marks have been washed away and fields of grain swept over. The Southern Pacific officers say that travel over the road cannot be resumed for a week.

Shot at the Church Door.

ST. LOUIS, September 11.—Shortly before midnight Friday night Wales Green, a negro, was shot and killed by Isaac Hamilton, another negro, in front of the Second Colored Episcopal church. Hamilton is a deacon of the church and tried to quell a disturbance among the young men, when he was assailed by Green, and he made his escape into the church, where he seems to have kept his armory hidden in a pew. He soon appeared on the scene with a pistol and Green rushed upon him, and the next instant received a bullet in his heart. The rest of the party fled and Hamilton surrendered to the police, claiming that the killing was in self-defense.

The Riot.

LONDON, September 12.—In the House of Commons to-night Balfour, Chief Secretary for Ireland, referring to the Mitchellstown affair, said it had been clearly ascertained that the action of the police was in face of extreme provocation. [Cries of "Oh!" "Oh!"] The police were assaulted with stones and blackthorn sticks before they drew their batons. [Cries of "No!" "No!" and "Hear!" "Hear!"] It was not until they were thrown in disorder by the charge of horsemen, which knocked down and wounded a number and forced the rest to fly for their lives, that the police fired. It was absolutely necessary for them to fire to protect the barracks and the unfortunate police strugglers outside [Cries of "Oh!" "Oh!" and cheers.] The firing was not the random firing of men in a panic, but a desperate act. Under the order of their commanding officer, he maintained that the conduct of the police was amply justified, and that they were in no way to blame, the sole responsibility resting upon those who convoked the meeting. [Cheers.]

Labouchere said that he had been in position to see all that had occurred at Mitchellstown. Stringent orders were given to the people by the leaders to avoid a disturbance. When they assembled in the Market place Dillon advised that proceedings be as short as possible, with a view of avoiding disorder. There was no objection to the presence of the Government reporter, but the police could not force him through a densely-packed crowd and they were driven back upon the reserve. They then advanced to assault the crowd, the affray being begun by a constable drawing his sword and wounding a horse. There were not at any moment more than fifty people fighting the police. There were women and children in the crowd, and the men had a perfect right to resist the attack. When the police fired there was no danger of any of them being attacked, either inside or outside the barracks. The police behaved like wild beasts battering people about without mercy. The chief constable showed a deliberate intention to break up the meeting. He held the chief constable and resident magistrate responsible for what had occurred, and he accused them of deliberate murder. (Cheers.)

Gas for Greensburgers.

GREENSBURG, Pa., September 12.—The new gas company that is to furnish competing gas for the citizens of this place has fully organized, and their agents are soliciting subscribers for the new gas.

The company will be known as the John Guffey & Co. Gas Company. They have purchased territory at Grapeville, upon which there is a well drilled to the sand and only needs tapping to send forth gas. The pipe line will be completed to Greensburg within the next three weeks.

Nine tenths of the citizens of this place have signified their willingness to contract with the new company for any term. Their price will be the same as the Greensburg Company charged before the late raise.

Killed by a Horse Car.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., September 11.—When Abraham Hardwick reached his home from New York Friday night he was horrified to learn that his only child, Fanny, aged 5 years, had been run over by a horse car and instantly killed. An investigation of the accident showed that the child while following its mother across the car tracks paused to look at the horses attached to a car moving toward her, and, remaining there till the last moment, stumbled and fell in her haste to get out of the way. The wheels broke both arms and nearly severed her body. The child lived one hour. The car driver was arrested.

The Revenue Commission

HARRISBURG, September 12.—The State revenue commission met in the Senate Chamber this evening and discussed the Palmer Bill, which appears to be the most popular, and making certain unimportant amendments.

Ex-Speaker Boyer succeeded in having adopted an amendment which will be known as Section 10, making it unlawful for any person or corporation to require a borrower to pay State taxes on loans. The commission will meet again in the morning.

An Extra Session Recommended.

HARRISBURG, Sept. 13.—At this morning's session of the revenue commission it was agreed to tax all property of transportation companies at its actual value at the rate of three mills on the dollar and its value to be measured by the market value of its stock and bonded indebtedness. At this afternoon's session the old Norris bill, which was lost through the failure of a proper return to the governor, was practically set forth in the new measure and the report will be signed by the members at the meeting of the commission to be held for that purpose at Senator Grady's office in Philadalphia on next Friday. A resolution was also adopted suggesting to Governor Beaver the advisability of calling an extra session of the legislature to enact the bill into a law, so that local taxation may be relieved in time to meet the assessments of next year.

A Murderer Re-Captured.

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 13.—James B. McCabe, the escaped murderer of Michael Reilly, who broke out of the Honesdale Jail two days previous to the date of his execution, in May last, was recaptured this morning and safely returned to the prison. His execution is now set down for Oct. 6th, Governor Beaver having respited him to that date last week, pending his recapture. For two weeks a posse searched barns, houses and forests in Mount Pleasant and Preston townships, and twice were right upon the heels of the fugitive. At one time he was in a barn when the men were searching an adjacent farm house. The barn stood near a piece of woods and faced the house. McCabe could not get out of any of the doors without being observed from the house, so he kicked off a couple of boards on the back part of the building and fled into the woods.

Another time he was working in a hay field when the men went to search the house on the farm. The farmer's wife blew a horn, which was a signal of danger to McCabe, and he again fled to the woods. Last week a pack of blood hounds was let loose in the forest in which McCabe was concealed. Their howls spread terror among the peopie who live in the small clearings, and the greatest excitement for a time prevailed. The pursued man soon emerged from the woods, but not until nightfall, and the last tidings of him was in Clinton township, where he was seen going in the direction of the coal regions.

Last Tuesday night a band of men was organized in Honesdale to continue the pursuit. They deployed along the crest of the Moosic Mountain, where it was thought that McCabe would cross to reach the Lackawanna valley, but they failed to capture him. Before daylight on Wednesday a number of buildings in Carbondale and along the base of the mountain in Wayne county were searched, but without success. Those in quest of the fugitive completely lost track of him and returned to Honesdale. Another party started out and kept up the search until this morning, when the murderer was recaptured. The capture was effected by Deputy Sheriffs Clark and Midland and citizens McMullin and Larkin.

Not a Candidate.

MADISON, Wis., September 13.—Commander-in-Chief Fairchild says that he is not a candidate for re-election at the coming Grand Army of the Republic meeting, and has so expressed himself to hundreds of veterans who are urging him to stand for re-election, especially as they were anxious that he should be vindicated. General Fairchild says that he cannot afford to devote another year to the duties of the commander-in-chief, which are such as to consume all his time, to the entire exclusion of his private interest. He says that he has no idea who will succeed him.

The commander-in-chief announces that Idaho has been detached from the department of Utah, the department of Idaho established, and W. H. Nye, of Boise City, appointed department commander; and that Arizona has been set aside from the department of California, the department of Arizona established, and A. L. Gow, of Tombstone, appointed department commander. There are now forty departments in the country. The general executive committee of the general encampment at St. Louis has been changed from the Lindell to 209 North Fourth street.

Prince Ferdinand Delighted.

PARIS, Sept. 12.—The Figaro to-day publishes a letter written by Prince Ferdinand, expressing his delight at his enthusiastic reception in Bulgaria.

The Prince says he believes the people of the country are thoroughly attached to him. He complains of the opposition of three great powers and regards their war against him as cruel and unjust. He hopes to rescue Bulgaria from the crisis in which she is placed, and is resolved to do his duty whatever happens.

A dispatch to the Journal des Debats from Bucharest says that ex-Premier Radoslavoff and several officers have been arrested in Bulgaria for connection with an alleged military plot. It is reported in Sofia that the police invented the plot in order to further the ends of M. Stambuloff, the present Prime Minister of Bulgaria.

A dispatch from Sofia says: It is stated that when the Sobranje meets the Government will propose the impeachment of MM. Karaveloff, Mikiforoff and others suspected of complicity in the overthrow of Prince Alexander.

California's Governor Dies.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 12.—Governor Washington Bartlett died at 5 o'clock this afternoon. The Governor had been in a critical condition for a month, and his death had been expected any day during the past two weeks. His death resulted from chronic affection of the kidneys. He was elected Governor of the State on the Democratic ticket in November, 1886. He will be succeeded in office by Lieutenant Governor R. W. Waterman, who was elected at the same time on the Republican ticket.

Briefs.

NEW YORK, September 11.—Claus A. Peterson, a young iron worker, met with a horrible accident yesterday morning while at work in the new St. George memorial chapel, on Sixteenth street, near Third avenue, adjoining the Rev. Dr. Rainsford's church. Peterson, with a number of other men, was engaged in putting on the iron roof directly over a stair way which runs up through the new building at the southeast corner. While hoisting up a heavy beam Peterson lost his footing and fell to the nearest staircase, thirty feet below. He struck one of the iron rods which was to form the support of the handrail. The rod penetrated his chest like a spear, the point coming out under his shoulder blade. The man's weight bent the rod like a reed, and he hung impaled over the staircase between the roof and the cellar, which yawned fifty feet below. The rivets had to be cut before the rod could be loosened. He bore his wound manfully, and he scarcely uttered a cry when the iron was plucked from his breast. He was taken in an ambulance to Bellevue hospital.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 11.—A dispatch from Cambride, O., says Z. C. Harris was shot twice in the head at the Berwick Hotel there yesterday. With two bullets in his brain he staggered to the depot and boarded a train for Caldwell, several miles south, which place he reached in an exhausted condition. Harris says a young woman named Louise Morrison did the shooting because he would not consent to marry her. He will probably die.

MITCHELLSTOWN, September 12.—The funeral of Michael Lonergan, who was shot dead by the police last Friday, took place this afternoon. The body was followed to the cemetery by thousands of people, the procession being half-a-mile long. At the grave Father Macarthy made an address, in which he exclaimed: "God have mercy upon his soul. May he receive more mercy in heaven than he received on earth."

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Mrs. Henry Seil, of Grove Point, was shot and instantly killed this afternoon while on her way to a funeral at Northfield. She was riding in a buggy and was struck by a stray bullet fired by one of a party of picnickers who were shooting at a mark. The fatal shot was fired by Frank Rinkeaberger. The whole party, including four men and six women, were placed under arrest.

LEWISTOWN, September 11.—The Pennsylvania railroad new round house, machine shops, five locomotives and six tanks at the Junction were destroyed early this morning by a fire, supposed to incendiary. Favorable winds and the application of salt saved Boyd & Stickney's extensive stock of coal and chutes. Loss estimated at sixty-five thousand.

MADISON, Ind., September 12.—Mrs. Ann P. Hendricks died early this morning, aged 90. She was the widow of ex-Governor William Hendricks, who was secretary of the first constitutional convention of Indiana, and who was elected Governor in 1820. Before his term expired he was elected United States Senator.

HALIFAX, N. S., September 13.—The fishing schooner Geraldine at Cano, from Grand Banks, besides having her decks swept, lost fourteen dories and everything moveable. One man named Nicholas Ash was lost. The Geraldine reports a great loss of life among the hand line fishermen on Grand Banks by the recent fierce gales.

WYANDOTTE, Kansas, September 12.—The jury in the case of George Hamilton, charged with train wrecking, reported a verdict of not guilty this morning. Hamilton was charged with being one of the strikers who in April, 1886, wrecked a Missouri Pacific freight train near here and killed two men.

DETROIT, Sept. 13.—At the session of the National Brewers union to-day a resolution was unanimously adopted condemning the action of General Master Workman Powderly in opposing the sale of intoxicating beverages as "detrimental to our emancipation."

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS

—The experiment of burning coal oil on the locomotives on the Pennsylvania Railroad has been a success so far as the mechanical side of the problem is concerned, because the experiment is not a new one, oil having been so used as fuel in Russia for many years. The only question is that of cost as compared with coal. At present it is cheaper than coal, but the Pennsylvania Railroad burns daily eight thousand tons of coal, and at this rate the annual consumption would be equivalent to more than nine million barrels of oil. This is about one-third of the annual product of oil in the United States. If this company should substitute oil for coal throughout its system the price of oil would inevitably rise until coal would be by far the cheaper fuel. It is estimated that the entire annual supply of American oil would be exhausted by the railroads of the United States in less than six months if they should all burn oil instead of coal. It is not probable, therefore, that oil will be largely used on our railroads. Even if the supply could be definitely fixed for years to come, the general use of such fuel by even one extensive railroad system would raise the price so high that coal would take its own place.

The Tramps Must Work.

The following law was passed by the last Legislature, and is now in full force: "That, when any persons shall have been arrested by authority of the burgess, alderman, or justice of the peace in any borough of this Commonwealth, charged with the violation of any peace ordinances or with being a vagrant or tramp, and having refused to pay the fine imposed for such offense, the said Burgess, alderman or justice of the peace of said borough shall have authority to commit such person or persons to the lockup or station house in said borough, for a term not exceeding five days, or compel such person to work upon the public works or streets of said borough, for a period of time not exceeding one day for each one dollar of fine as aforesaid imposed."

A Ten-cent Show.

We copy the following from the Fishkill (N. Y.) Daily Democrat: "The best show ever exhibited under a pavilion in this place, for the low price of admission asked to see it, is that given this week by Hurlburt, Hunting & Frost, the first performance of which they gave last night to a large audience. Visitors of the show, on entering, first have an opportunity to look at the menagerie, and there is a good collection of wild beasts, monkeys, etc. The people then pass into the large tent where the performances are given—all for ten cents. The horses with this show are thoroughbred, and are the best educated animals we have ever seen. The performances are wonderful. The tumbling and trapeze acts and the boy's acts on the wire are excellent. The trained dogs perform some wonderful feats and this part of the show is an important feature.

"Messrs. Hurlburt, Hunting & Frost give a first class entertainment, and they make it comfortable for their patrons. There are ample seats for a large crowd and they will have it while in town judging from the attendance the first night, and no one will regret investing ten cents to see so much.

"Mr. Hurlburt exhibited his team of black horses on the street this forenoon, driving them without bit or rein. He has perfect command of them. The company have an excellent band with them." Entertainments will be given in Bellefonte on Wednesday and Thursday, the 21st and 22d.

—The inside partition walls of the new Bush Arcade are being built quite rapidly. It looks queer to see the interior of a building progressing so rapidly, when the outside has not even been commenced. But the inside of a building is the part people use, so what odds whether there is any exterior or not.

—New paint in bright colors is being applied to the exterior of Bellefonte residences.

Philipsburg Again.

Question—Where was Harry Faust on Sunday? Answer—At Bigler.

Mrs. Sam'l Fleck is visiting her son, Tom, at Shamokin. We wish her a pleasant trip and safe return.

Our town is being over run with agents for a patent roaster and baker.

Philson Black, a well known young man, who clerked in Kessler & Fryberger's store at one time, died at Carlisle the other day. He was attending school down there.

Our base ball club is now ahead in the Mountain League. Philipsburg is always sure to be ahead in base ball as well as everything else.

Sunday was a disagreeable day in the full sense of the word. Gloom and rain prevailed throughout the time from morning until night.

To say that Harry Hasson, the handsome young drug clerk for S. S. Crissman, is making a good compounder of drugs, is but stating the truth.

Wythes & Huffington are still improving that part of town out near the driving park.

Our public schools are now in full blast again. Professor Sheeder, the popular principal, is the right man for the position he occupies.

'Squire McKernon, of Chester Hill, has the finest lot of bees in Centre county. He takes great pride in raising and showing his little "busy friends." He reaps large profits from them each year, and if you want to see something nice in the bee line just call over and see the clever 'Squire.

The old and reliable Reliance Fire Company, No. 1, elected the following officers on Tuesday evening of last week. It will be seen the Chief, the prince of good fellows, Steel Crissman, has been re-elected. The boys know when they have a good man at the helm:

President—Harry Lehman.
Vice President—J. Squires.
Secretary—Charles Hancock.
Treasurer—W. E. Tyson.
Chief—S. S. Crissman.
Foreman—Chet Wilcox.
First Assistant Foreman—Chas. Smith.
Second Assistant Foreman—Andrew Hunter.
Plugman—Will Southard.
Assistant Plugman—W. S. Starrett.
Trustees—George Reule, Ed. McCormick and A. R. Feistal.

A young man by the name of Harry Moore, of Philadelphia, will now conduct the business at the late James Haines' photograph gallery.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Crabtree were startled on Sunday morning when they awakened to find that that their three-year-old babe was dead, but such was the case. They have the sympathy of their many friends.

Frank Gearhart, who has worked in Willey's tailor shop for a long time, has gone to Tyrone to work for Keogle, the tailor, there. Good bye, Frank, many a girl will miss you in Philipsburg.

Edward, son of Major John Wolfe, died at his home on Seventh and Spruce streets, early on Sunday moning. He was a fine young man, indeed, aged about 19 years, and had many associates in town to whom he was near and dear. The affair was a sad one to that family. and our sympathy goes with them.

Many of our citizens are witnesses on the murder cases at Clearfield this week.

Harry Boring, son of Captain J. H. Boring, is now the centre of attraction at Wythes & Huffington's store. He is a very obliging and well-liked young man.

SOME ONE.

The Accumulated Wealth of a Year.

The past summer has been a wonderful and unprecedented one in and around Bellefonte. Every mechanic and laborer in the town and many from a distance have been constantly employed and this press of work will be prolonged until winter stops it. Is it too great an estimate to name $1,000,000 added to the material wealth of the town as a result of this activity?

Let us see:

The two iron furnace plants, so near the town that their lofty smoke stacks stand as guards at either extremity of the borough, will aggregate above $500,000. See the towering and stately buildings now being erected at the opposite corners of Diamond Square; add to this the new Arcade, which is to be an ornament to that part of the town. These three structures and the Garman House represent an added wealth of about $125,000. A dozen houses have been or are being erected on East Bishop street. An equal number, including the row of dwellings, are being built in the portion of the borough north of Curtin street. All of these probably represent $50,000. All the other houses that have been or will be erected ere the year ends foot up another $50,000. The work done on the Roman Catholic church, the new school house and hundreds of repairs and improvements throughout the town will easily amount to more than $25,000. These and many more which we do not now remember will almost reach the million dollar mark.

—Mr. Chas. Nau has three classes in music, some of which he considers quite promising. He seems to be a successful teacher and aims to train each voice so that it will be under perfect control and will perform its special part in rendering accurate music. Mr. Nau spent twelve years in the best conservatories of music in Germany.

—The fireworks display in Huntingdon on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of next week will be the grandest spectacle ever witnessed in the central part of the State. The fact that Prof. Samuel Jackson, the distinguished pyrotechnic, of Philadelphia, has been engaged by the committee, and will give the exhibition his own supervision, insures a creditable and successful display.

—At present the promises for the success of the Patrons' picnic on Nittany's lofty and attractive height are exceedingly favorable. The clouds have scattered and the sun shines forth warm and affectionately. Hacks and conveyances of all descriptions are carrying the people from this direction up the mountain, and people are gathering there from near and far.

—As has heretofore been announced, a re-union of the Chandler family, in America is occurring to-day at Birmingham Park, on the Brandywine. The Shortlidge family of this place is closely connected with the Chandler family and Mr. William Shortlidge is in attendance. It attracted about 2,000 persons from all sections of the country and is an occasion of intense interest.

IT is asserted by the New Haven News, though we don't believe it, that even the fashionable sunburn, upon which some girls pride themselves in summer, is bought in a bottle and put on with a brush. But what if it is? That is better than buying the popular red nose in a bottle and putting it on with a corkscrew.

THE exports of wheat from this country and home prices for the ensuing year are likely to be up to the average. Owing to a falling off in the crops the United Kingdom will have to import at least 150,000,000 bushels, and this will come largely from the United States.

—Rev. J. R. Davies, the newly-elected pastor of the Presbyterian church, in Tyrone, has accepted the call and will enter upon his duties as pastor of that congregation on Sunday, Sept. 25th.

—The frame work of the new residence of E. R. Chambers, Esq., was commenced to-day. In a couple of months the structure will be ready for occupancy.

—The funeral services over the remains of the late William I. Curtin will be held at his mother's residence at 10.30 o'clock this morning.

People Demand Protection—Patent Medicines.

What are they? As a general thing they are prescriptions having been used with great success by old and well-read Physicians. Thousands of invalids have been unexpectedly cured by their use, and they are the wonder and dread of Physicians and Medical Colleges in the U. S., so much so, that Physicians graduating at Medical Colleges are required to discountenance Proprietary Medicines, as through them the country doctor loses his most profitable practice. As a manufacturer of Proprietary Medicines, Dr. G. G. Green, of Woodbury, N. J., advocates most cordially,—in order to prevent the risk that the sick and afflicted are liable to, almost daily by the use of Patent Medicines put out by inexperienced persons for aggrandizement only, and the employing of inexperienced and incompetent doctors by which almost every village and town is cursed; and men claiming to be doctors who had better be undertakers, experimenting with their patients and robbing them of their money and health,—for the good of the afflicted that our government protects its people by making laws to regulate the practice of medicine by better experienced and more thoroughly educated Physicians, and thereby keep up the honor and credit of the profession, also form laws for the recording of recipes of Proprietary Medicines, under examination and decision of experienced Chemists and Physicians appointed for that purpose by the Government, before they are licensed for general use. He would most freely place the recipe of Boschee's German Syrup and Green's August Flower under such laws, had he the proper protection, and thereby save the prejudice of the people, and avoid the competition and imitation of worthless medicines.—Copied, August 3rd, '87, from the Chicago Mail.

In the Whole Hideous Catalogue

Of diseases, there were none which, previous to the discovery of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, offered more formidable resistance to the old fashioned modes of treatment than the group of maladies which, under the collective name of malarial disease, afflicted entire communities that suffered hopelessly. Chills and fever, dumb ague, ague cake and bilious remittant were once regarded as well nigh incurable. Now it rejoices the hearts of thousands who reside in districts periodically subject to the visitation of malaria, to feel certain that in the Bitters they possess a certain defense against the scourge, a sure means of expelling its poison from the system. To the settler in the far West, the new emigrant thither, and to travelers and tourists by land and by sea, the possession of this pleasant safeguard is a guaranty of safety from diseases which they might vainly seek from any other source.

Caused by Thought.

"Your hair is much thinner than when I last met you," said a man addressing an acquaintance.

"Yes, considerable of it came out."

"How do you account for it?"

"Thought."

"What! you don't mean to say that thinking caused it to come out?"

"Yes."

"That goes to show that baldness is often caused by mental work. I have been for some time thinking of preparing an article on that subject, and I would like for you to give me your experience."

"Well, I can do so in a few words. Several weeks ago I was talking to a fellow named Jackson. We were engaged in a dispute concerning the settlement of a debt, and directly after thinking of something my hair began to fall out."

"I don't understand it."

"I do. I said what I thought, and he reached after me."

A Short Catechism.

What did President Cleveland do on Memorial day?

He went fishing.

What did he catch?

He caught Hail Columbia from the Grand Army and its friends.

What did he do on his return to Washington?

He offered to surrender the captured rebel flags to "the Confederate States."

What did he discover when he made that illegal proposition?

He discovered that he had opened his mouth and put both legs in it. He is a dandy President—he is!

Proper Bible Wine.

Alfred Speer, who has large vineyards near Passaic, N. J., is extensively engaged in preserving Unfermented Grape Juice from the Oporto Grapes and supplies it to many religious societies for Communion purposes. The following is from Dr. John Ellis, who has written several works on Bible wine: "The writer obtained from Mr. Speer a bottle of his Unfermented Wine and found it a very pleasant and nutritious wine. A chemist put a portion of this wine into a retort and distilled and condensed about one third of the contents of the retort. The distilled had neither the smell nor the taste of alcohol, nor did chemical tests indicate any presence of alcohol."

Emperor Francis Joseph, of Austria, who, as usual, spends part of the summer at Ischl, leads there, as in Vienna, a life of great simplicity. He rises at 4 o'clock in the morning and takes a long walk in the mountains. At 7:30 he returns for breakfast, which consists of a cup of coffee with very little cream. Until 3 o'clock he is busy with State affairs; then dinner is served, consisting of soup, boiled beef and some roast. He takes no wine with it. After dinner he rides out or calls on some of the distinguished summer guests of Ischl. At 8 o'clock cold tea is served and at 9 the Emperor invariably retires.

He wrote as follows:—"It affords me great pleasure to recommend to the public Gilmore's Aromatic Wine. I believe it to be the most desirable remedy that can be placed in any family. I am well acquainted with the manufacturers, and have confidence in their ability to do a good thing for suffering humanity. I have used their Wine in my family for a number of years with good effect, and firmly believe it will do what is claimed for it."

The Fourth Ticket.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. September 7.—The state convention of the union labor and greenback parties met here to-day and was called to order by Chairman Rynder, of the state committe. The attendance was good. Two greenback delegates present were delegates from labor organizations. Captain James Krebs, of Indiana county, was chosen chairman, with Elmer Straub, of Northumberland, and George S. Boyle, of Schuylkill, as secretaries. A committee of thirteen was appointed on the platform, with Congressman Brumm, as chairman. Committee reported in favor of reaffirming the platform of the union labor party adopted at Cincinnati in February last, and this was unanimously agreed to. The following resolution was also unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we view with alarm the increasing power of the corporations in the state as seen in their utter disregard of the constitution in the obstruction by rival corporations of the completion of the South Pennsylvania railroad after an expenditure of five millions had been made, and the defeat in the senate by malign influences of needed measures of legislation designed to control the extortions of the Standard oil company, which has seized upon and almost ruined an important industry of the state.

The following nominations were made by acclamation: Supreme judge, Charles S. Keyser, of Philadelphia; state treasurer, H. L. Bunker, of Hollidaysburg. T. P. Rynder was re-elected chairman of the state committee, with George S. Boyle, of Shenandoah, as secretary.

The new organization is to include the various elements heretofore voted, and it is proposed to form union labor clubs in each county to carry on the campaign. The managers claim that they will elect their county ticket in a number of counties.

Powderly Makes Reply.

CHICAGO, September 7.—To-day concluded the convention of the German Roman Catholic Central Union of America. The chief interest centered in the following dispatch which was read to the assembled delegates by the secretary.

SCRANTON, Pa., September 6.—To President Spannhorst, German Roman Catholic Central Union Convention, Chicago: The resolutions introduced yesterday by Delegate Milsch, against the Knights of Labor, are unkind, unjust and must have been based on misrepresentation. The Knights of Labor have never petitioned against and never will petition against German emigration. I am not an enemy to the Germans and nothing in my career can so be construed, unless my advice to workingmen to be sober and temperate can bear that construction. That advice has been given to all workingmen regardless of nationality. The Knights of Labor are neither anarchists, socialists nor prohibitionists, but they are temperate. Is it a fault to be temperate? The Germans of this place, Catholic and Protestant, know that I am not and never have been their enemy. I regard the Germans as I do other men. They have the same right to keep sober and temperate and to receive good wages as other men. Will your convention say that this is wrong? I wish your convention godspeed and hope that its deliberations will be for the good of all men, whether German or not.

T. V. POWDERLY,
General Master Workman of K. of L.

The secretary was instructed to inform Mr. Powderly that the Milsch resolution had been rejected. During the afternoon session Mr. Milsch, the originator of the resolution against the Knights of Labor, made an explanation of his intention, and the secretary was ordered to add to his letter to Powderly the statement that Mr. Milsch did not mean to attack the Knights of Labor. He hated anarchists and revolutionary socialists and prohibitionists, and wanted to have them denounced. But he didn't think the Knights of Laber were all of that class. As for Mr. Powderly himself, he considered him a man who was truly solicitous for the best interests of the workingmen.

Off for Cuba.

KEY WEST, Sept. 8.—A small expedition was quietly despatched from here several days ago for Cuba under the command of Beriben, a brother of Lieutenant Beriben, of the Spanish Army, a Republican sympathizer who Santo Esperito, Cuba, two years ago, resigned his position and proclaimed Cuba Libre, and now lies in a Spanish prison at Ceuta, Africa. The party consisted of sixteen picked men, all known to have previously fought in the wars waged for Cuban independence.

They were armed with thirty-three Colt's repeating rifles, each man having 1,000 cartridges. Each had two Smith & Wesson' revolvers, besides bowie knives and cutlasses, and carried in addition about 500 pounds of dynamite and a number of bombs. They left here on a small sponging vessel, which is to land them on the Cuban coast under cover of darkness near Calbarien, where another band of 200 men await their arrival. Afterward they propose to join Matagasas and other bands of the interior, and at once begin a system of guerilla warfare against the Spanish rulers.

Other detachments are expected to join them soon from here and elsewhere, for which arrangements are already made. Ample funds are said to be in the hands of recruiting agents. Beriben's party carried with them to aid the party in the interior $20,000 in gold. The dynamite will be used to blow up the houses and quarters of the Spanish officials. The boat which took the party has returned, and reports a successful trip.

The Bulgarian Question.

LONDON, September 9.—The Bulgarian question appears to be rapidly nearing a settlement, and a forced settlement at that. The mission of General Ernroth on behalf of Russia having been abandoned on account of the failure of some of the powers to give formal assent to his presence in Bulgaria as the porte's provincial governor ostensibly, but the czar's representative really, the St. Petersburg government has thrown down the gauntlet and declared that the treaty of Berlin must be either respected in toto or disregarded in whole.

If the powers, Russia sets forth, are content to permit Prince Ferdinand, by his presence in Bulgaria, to violate the terms of the treaty as regard the Balkan states, they must expect to see Russia ignore such provisions of the treaty as stand in the way of driving out the "usurpers" and gaining other advantages that her hitherto strict observance of obligations of the convention has prevented her from obtaining.

Russia has all along been accused of playing the part of the dog in the manger in the Bulgarian business, but it is not she that is now filling that role. The powers that have been foremest in imputing that character to Russia are now the ones that object to Russia's methods of restoring legal government in Bulgaria.

They admit, either tacitly or explicitly, that the election of Prince Ferdinand was illegal and that every day of his stay in Sofia as the ostensible ruler of the principality, emphasizes the flagrancy of his violation of the treaty and insults the powers signatory thereto; yet they take no steps to punish him or to compel him to relinquish the power he has no right to exercise.

It was not to be expected that Germany would take the initiative in a movement of this kind, since her interests in the Balkan states are insignificant as compared with those of some of the other powers, but the fact is now beyond question that the German government is committed to a passive policy, and to the extent of keeping its hands off, will assist Russia in maintaining the status quo ante in Bulgaria. With this understanding Russia will undoubtedly in a few days manifest her intention to perform alone the duty that the other powers have neglected.

He Sould be Satisfied.

LEWISTON, Minn., September 8.—Yesterday afternoon a bold robbery was committed in the town of Elba. N. Decker, a farmer, sold one of his farms some weeks ago, receiving wo thousand dollars for it, which he kept secreted in his residence, thinking the bank unsafe. About 4.30 o'clock, Mr. Decker being absent, Mrs. Decker went to a spring for some water, some ten minutes walk from the dwelling, leaving a six months child in the house.

Upon returning, when in sight of the dwelling, she discovered smoke issuing from the second-story window and entering found the flames beyond control and the money gone from its hiding place. She barely escaped with the child. The building and contents were all consumed, with no insurance. Decker had been cautioned about keeping so much money in the house. There is no clue to the robbers.

Briefs.

LONDON, September 9.—Mr. W. H. Hurlbert, in a letter to the Times with reference to the invitation from Philadelphia to Mr. Gladstone, says that he was authorized by Mr. George W. Childs to offer Mr. Gladstone absolute carte blanche.

VIENNA, September 9.—Emperor Francis Joseph has conferred upon M. Pasteur the decoration of the Order of the Iron Crown, with the title of Baron.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., September 7.—Among the successful candidates for the naval academy to-day was B. F. Jones, of Pennsylvania.

WASHINGTON, September 7.—Grove City, Pa., has been made a presidential postoffice and assigned to the third class.

IN BRIEF, AND TO THE POINT

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

STEPS FORWARD.

In the Work of Educating the Youth of Bellefonte.

THE NEW SCHOOL BUILDING DEDICATED.

Thursday was a red-letter day in the history of education in this place. The new school house, which has been reared on the school property on East Bishop street, was dedicated with appropriate ceremony. The school grounds, which are not yet completed, will be dedicated with exercises held at a later day, under the auspices of the pupils.

The school building outside is plain and unpretentious; inside it is admirably arranged and handsomely finished and furnished. The DAILY NEWS described the interior a month ago and will not repeat. The front room upstairs was filled early on Thursday afternoon and at once made evident the only defect we have noticed about it. All the space on the second floor should be so arranged that it can be converted into one apartment. If this had been done no one would have been turned away on Thursday; as it was, one third of the people could not squeeze in. Harry Keller, Jerome Harper, Walter Lemokey, Harry Jenkins, and Frank Lukenbaugh officiated gracefully as ushers. A large and efficient choir rendered choice selections of music with Miss Laura Wright as organist. Among the notables present were Rev. Dr. Clerc, of Philipsburg; William C. Mayne, Esq., and Mr. William J. Maloney, of Philadelphia.

"Praise thou the Lord" swelled forth in triumphant notes of praise from the choir in which Miss Mary Bradley sang a solo part with fine expression, perfect phrasing and artistic grace. Rev. W. H. H. Snyder's invocation was earnest and impressive. The notes of "Let the hills and vales resound," which still "linger like music in our ears" are lively and sweet.

President Fortney, who with a few directors, the orators and other participants, crowded on the small platform, looked around the room and saw that two of the orators were not present, therefore he decided to "sail in" and give vigorous expression to his very decided opinions on education, which he did under the title, "Statement in reference to the schools." The building, he said, was not commenced until actually needed. None has grumbled at the money which has been expended. The schools were in a miserable condition, and the teachers were not to be condemned for lack of efficiency. Indeed, it was surprising that they made any progress. Six hundred children were crowed into the space designed for four hundred—last winter there were 625, and the number was steadily increasing. The growing manufacturing interests are multiplying the population so rapidly that both buildings will soon be crowded. The contract price for the building was $11,126.75. The workmen struck a sand bank (not a savings bank,) which added $670.20 to the work. Painting, which was not in the contract price, was $260. Then there was the architect and superintendent, who received $379.75. Fifty dollars was expended to put electric wires in the building; lightning rods $62.50; weather vane $18.17; Logan Machine Works $37.75; concrete pavement $243.42; heating apparatus $2,000; bell $125; furniture $737.90, grand total, $15,723.44. Other expenses not connected with the building are $2,500 for the lot, $590 for pavement and $600 for grading. Nine hundred dollars was received for the colored school building, which may be deducted from total cost.

The new building should enable them to take a step forward and to render better service. New methods of teaching should be introduced. President Fortney would like to see all the elementary learning included under the two branches, reading and writing. Copy books should be banished from the schools. Pupils should read, write and spell in one exercise, and primary instruction should be largely upon kindergarten principles.

Governor Beaver has appointed a commission to take into consideration the practicability of associating industrial education with the school system—not only for boys, but for girls. It is so associated in many of the higher schools of the country.

Prof. T. M. Balliet, of Reading, was introduced. He was at one time in charge of the Bellefonte schools and has risen to be prominent as an educator. He judged by the expressions of the President of the Board that Bellefonte is singularly fortunate in having one to propagate such progressive educational sentiments. Poor as school buildings are, they are usually better than the teaching in progress within them. Carlisle said that much depends on the children. Mr. Balliet believes that more depends on parents. He also quoted from Lincoln. His theme was "The New Education," but he said that education can be said to be new only as a coat or the school house are new. The materials which compose the brick, morter, etc., of the school house are themselves old. The new education is the application of the conception of education to school work. The treatment of the subjects of study in text books is not the natural one. As the doctor is required to know the structure of the body, so the teacher should be acquainted with psychology. The point is to know the child, not the study.

The "marking" system he considers a curse to public schools; its tendency is to undermine character for the sake of what may be only rubbish. Away with definitions and memorizing. His plan is to have about six first readers, two or three second readers, two third readers—completely banishing the fourth and fifth readers. His address was a masterly presentation of theories the practice of which has been attempted in some degree by Bellefonte educators, but which must prove impracticable both here and elsewhere so long as such rigid economy is considered necessary in teachers' salaries and in other expenses relating to education. The address closed with pleasant words for Bellefonte.

"The world is what we make it," was a vocal medley, sang by a double male quartette—just the kind of music which we "shall never cease to love."

County Superintendent D. M. Wolf was the next speaker. He congratulated the friends of education on this substantial evidence of progress. It was proper and necessary that the material interests of the schools should prosper. Until friends of advanced education should prepare suitable text books we must be content with those we have, and the efforts of many are not on a par even with these text books. For instance, some one who recently wrote to him to know whether he would nead any more teachers in Centre county should be treated with a few applications of the word nead when k is prefixed to it.

"The Mountain Land," rendered by the choir, filled the room with melody.

Rev. D. S. Monroe, D. D., was introduced by the President as one who never failed to assist when called on. He replied in a corresponding strain of acknowledgement. As a result of a conversation with a director on the subject, his address would be on the relation of the Bible to the schools. He quoted Mr. Herbert Spencer, who in his work on education, says that the neglect of moral teaching is a most glaring defect. Though the constitution divorces church from state, he opines that it does not banish God from the Nation. Our schools, though unsectarian, are not necessarily Godless. In the course of his remarks on this subject he said that education does not make men greater criminals, but it increases the number of laws against crimes. Fifty years ago, in Massachusetts, not more than a dozen crimes were forbidden, now at least fifty crimes come under the prohibition of law. The proportion prevails elsewhere.

The teaching of morality and religion is absolutely necessary. It is the result of inquiry. It is necessary to stop all inquiry or bring morality and religion into the public schools. Even the teaching of evolution leads to inquiry which science cannot answer. The origin of all laws leads to God. If you ignore the moral you make education incomplete and its motive selfish. Sculpture, painting, music and the arts have their highest exemplifications from the inspiring themes of sacred revelation. No nations ever survived the loss of their religion, be it Christian or heathen. He spoke of the wide wave of immigration which will sink our national ship and reduce us to the level of the Choctaws or Hottentots, with the corrupt faith of the Dark Ages, if morality and religion be not included in education.

Ex-Gov. Curtin was introduced as one who, when the State Executive, did much for the advancement of the public schools Unfortunately the Governor is afflicted with a cold so severe that it almost entirely deprives him of the use of his voice. Only those near by could catch his utterances. He expressed his felicitation over the event of the day, his hearty desire to make a speech, his part, while he was Executive, in furthering the public schools, etc. He said that the first of the many public offices which he had filled was that of school director, and it was one in which he took much pride. He intended to inform some of Bellefonte's citizens of their neglect of duty in absenting themselves from such an auspicious occasion, and finally wished that he could exchange throats with some of them.

The popular selection, "America," closed the musical programme. Governor Curtin enjoyed it so much that he wanted everybody to join in.

Rev. D. S. Monroe, D. D., dismissed the audience, with the benediction.

About Pumpkins.

Bailey, of the Bellefonte DAILY NEWS, asks: "Isn't it time to hear something about overgrown pumpkins?" Hardly, friend B., but this reminds us to say that whenever we see you the idea of an undersized pumpkin occurs to us.—L. H. Daily Democrat.

When our best girl saw that item she remarked that "small pumpkins make the best pies that can be manufactured; but what in the world are cabbage heads and other such green garden truck good for?"

—The surviving members of the twenty-second Pennsylvania Volunteer Cavalry will hold a mounted re-union in Huntingdon next Wednesday, the 21st, during the centennial of that town. We italicize the word mounted, because we believe it is the first attempt to carry out this feature of cavalry service at any re-union since the war. Those who cannot take horses along with them can procure them in Huntingdon at $1.50 per day.

A Brilliant Wedding.

The largest number of people that have attended any wedding in Bellefonte for a long time thronged the Roman Catholic church on Bishop street, Wednesday evening. The following gentlemen officiated as ushers: Messrs. Thomas Howley, John Bauer, Walter Gerrity and James McCully. The bride, Miss Ella M. Cunningham, looked surpassingly lovely in a robe of cream Spanish lace with bonnet to match. Her natural beauties were much enhanced by this tasteful outfit. The groom, Mr. Vincent J. Bauer, was manly and handsome in the dress suit prescribed for such occasions. The charming Miss Kitty Bauer, a sister of the groom, graced the occasion as bridesmaid, while Mr. Walter Gerrity, one of the ushers, made his part in the affair a dual one as groomsman. It was about a quarter past 7 when the ceremony was performed by the priest, Rev. P. McArdle. The expectant audience was on the qui vive of excitement and enjoyed the beautiful spectacle and the impressive ceremony, although some of them were almost unable to press into the thronged edifice.

The bride and groom—Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Bauer—went away on the evening train. Where they went to we wont reveal, though we will endeavor to inform the public of the time of their arrival home. Meanwhile, we hope for them a life of unalloyed bliss and prosperity.

Amusements Coming.

The amusement season now about to open will not be so conspicuous for the number of the entertainments to be given in Bellefonte as for the high character of those which will be here.

On Saturday evening, the 17th, Charles R. Gardner's "Only a Farmer's Daughter" Company will appear in Humes' Hall. This is a dramatic company of superior merit. A few evenings since the company gave an entertainment in Scranton, the opera house being crowded. Marion Abbott appears in the leading role. A large audience at this entertainment will be an encouragement for Gregg post to secure others later in the season, and as Mr. Gardner has other excellent companies he will probably contrive to give Bellefonte a date for one or more of them.

On the evening of the 23d inst. Richard O'Gorman will appear in the great comedy, "Human Nature." A band and orchestra accompany this organization, to which we shall refer later.

Educational Topics.

The Board of School Directors held a meeting on Wednesday evening, transacting a variety of business, among the most important of which was the fixing of rates of tuition for parties outside the borough who desire to attend the public schools in town. Four dollars per month will be charged all parties attending the High School, and $2.50 per month for those attending any of the lower grades.

All such persons must get a receipt from the secretary of the board before they will be admitted.

In connection with this announcement we are requested to state that all parties who have not heretofore attended the borough schools, and who expect to attend the approaching term, are requested to meet the principal in the stone building on Monday afternoon and receive cards of enrollment. They will not be admitted without such a card.

—A law important to parties wishing to contest the will of a decedent or to appeal from the decision of the register in admitting it to probate was passed at the last session of the State Legislature and approved by Governor Beaver. It authorizes registers of wills and orphans' courts to require security for costs, and to apportion costs in cases of caveats and appeals. The provision is made that when parties file a caveat against the admission of a will to probate, or appeal from the decision of the register, they must within ten days after taking such action enter security for costs. Two securities are required and the bond is to be in the sum of not less than $500 or more than $5,000. If security is not entered within the specified time the proceeding must be dismissed and the will regarded as if it had not been opposed.

—On Wednesday Mrs. Ruth Armor, of East Linn street, was 88 years of age. She is in the possession of quite excellent health and is able to make trips to town and to go around visiting her relatives when she desires to do so. She has had so many anniversaries of her birth that she don't pay much attention to them now, so she did not expect any special celebration of the event. Great was her surprise and pleasure on Wednesday evening to receive a visit from many of her relatives, who came bringing presents of all descriptions. They spent the evening with the venerable lady, enjoying her society. We hope the present promises, that Mrs. Armor's life will be prolonged through many more years, may be abundantly fulfilled.

—Mr. George O. Boal and Miss Jennie M. Gehret were wedded at 7 o'clock on Thursday evening at the bride's home on Spring street. Rev. Wm. Laurie officiated. The bride is a bright, accomplished lady and was a teacher during several years in the Bellefonte Academy. The groom is a highly intelligent gentleman and has excellent talents as an elocutionist. The occasion was a pleasant and quiet one. Mr. and Mrs. Boal entered the evening train and went direct to Baltimore to live, to which city they are followed by the congratulations and best wishes of a multitude of friends

Philipsburg Again.

Captain Cunningham, of the Salvation Army, requests us to say that if certain young ladies do not know how to conduct themselves while attending services at his grove meetings, they should be accompanied by their mothers hereafter.

Mountain Lodge, No. 144, of the Order of Tonti, meets every first and third Thursday of each month. This Order is growing rapidly, each meeting they are adding new members. The present officers are from among our best citizens. For instance, Past Master Gowland is the D. S. P. At the last meeting five new members were added, with more than that number to be initiated at the next lodge meeting.

How about our street lights? Is it possible that our enterprising citizens will go back to the darkness, when the lamps and everything else are in shape? Let us have light.

Harry Baney, chief clerk in Hale's hardware store, has returned from a pleasant visit to his wife at Bellefonte. To say that Harry is missed in that store when he goes away is but telling the whole truth.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. John Stine died on Monday, of this week. The bereaved family has the sympathy of many friends. "The little one has gone home."

A little tussle which caused some fun occurred in Brinton, Duncan & Banes' store on Tuesday evening. It was between the boss miller, Billy Benner, and one of Mr. Duncan's clerks. Billy came out best, as he always does, both in running a mill and all else he undertakes. The other fellow with the fine clothes on looked like a miller, too, after the scuffle was over.

SOME ONE.

—John Johnson, colored, died on Saturday evening, September 3d, in Lawrence township, Clearfield county, at the over-ripe age of 116 years. When a young man he was a slave, but ran away. During all his life in the North he was known to be honest and upright. As early as 1838 he was employed at what was then the "Clearfield House," when one day a southern gentleman came forward to get his horse which John was bringing from the stable. When John saw the gentleman he ran away as fleet as a deer. His fright was caused by the fact that he recognized the stranger to be a neighbor of his former master in the South, and was afraid of being carried back into slavery.

—Fredericksburg, Va., has a big pickle factory that is supplied with cucumbers from the lands adjoining the city. This season the supply has reached 30,000,000 cucumbers. those engaged in their production furnishing from 200,000 to 1,000,000 each. An acre will produce 100,000, and they will sell in Fredericksburg at 70 cents per thousand. The object is to get them an inch or an inch and a half long, and this requires active picking before they increase their size. A boy will pick 3,000 in a day. Picking them thus early increases the productiveness of the vine, and, while the season lasts, others are appearing in place of those taken from the vines.

—A great speech was missed on Thursday afternoon by the audience at the dedication. Clem Dale, Esq., occupied a comfortable standing position on the platform at the top of the stairs where he jotted down numerous brilliant thoughts on his programme. These he delivered to the small and select audience assembled there. It was one of the most eloquent addresses of the day and was received with applause. Apprehending that the enthusiastic hearers would convey him on their shoulders into the large room and compell him to repeat the address, he retired from the scene at an early hour.

JAS. H. DOBBINS, P. M.

—The parlors of the mansion of John Ardell, Jr. on Linn street, was the scene of a wedding at 8 o'clock on Thursday evening. At that time Mr. Robert Foster, the yard watchman at the Phœnix Planing Mill, was united in marriage to Miss Eliza Moore, an inmate of Mr. Ardell's household. Rev. Dr. Clerc, rector of the P. E. church in Philipsburg, officiated. The happy couple received numerous valuable gifts. They went at once to their own furnished house where many friends called on them. The festivities were continued until a late hour.

—The elements did not favor the temperance meeting on Friday evening, but nevertheless, the court room was at least half filled, the audience comprising the best people of the town. Major Hilton was even more eloquent and forcible than when he spoke here before, and his many beautiful sentiments and strong points caused great enthusiasm and applause. Should he come to Bellefonte this winter for a series of meetings they could not but be eminently successful.

A Novel Bet.

While I am not a betting man, said F. J. Cheney, of the firm of F. J. Cheney & Co., I considered it my religious duty to make that fellow a bet. You see he was about dead, and I guess he would have died before Spring, if I had not got him on the bet. You know some men had rather lose their life than lose a hundred. Well he was one of that kind, and we both came near being out, but I saved my hundred and it only cost him ten dollars. How's that? He sent for me one day and said the doctors had all given him up to die, with the catarrh. I told him that I would bet him $100 that Hall's Catarrh Cure would cure him or I would give him $100 if it failed. He took the latter proposition. This was three months ago; you see how he looks now, don't you, as well as any one, and a dandy.—American, Toledo, O.

—The following statistics as to the condition of the order of the Knights of the Golden Eagle in Centre county are gleaned from the report of District Grand Chief T. B. Jamison, of Spring Mills, the membership and other statistics given being for the semi-annual term, ending June 30, of the present year: Centre Castle, No. 169 of Spring Mills: instituted March 22, 1887; initiations during the past six months 40; membership 40; invested $258.65. Philipsburg Castle, No. 193, of Philipsburg: instituted August 12, 1887; with 65 members."

—Judge John Irwin has been in Clearfield this week attending the funeral of his brother, Wm. F. Irwin, of that place, whose death occurred on Monday, the fifth, the funeral services being held on Wednesday afternoon. The deceased was quite well known here, having frequently visited his brother here and also his son James, of Snow Shoe, when the latter was a resident of Bellefonte. He was born in this place on the 4th of August, 1812. His age was 75 years, 1 month and 1 day.

—Nick Knevels, of Shanandoah, shot his prospective father-in-law, Peter Becker, in the mouth a few days ago, and the bullet was found just under the skin at the back of the neck. It appears that all the reason that Knevels had for firing the shot was because he wanted Becker to become his father-in-law and Becker declined the honor. We don't wonder that Mr. Becker did not want such a son-in-law, and if, as seems probable, Becker dies of his wound, woe be to Mr. Knevels!

—At 2 o'clock on Friday morning a fire started in a row of buildings at Roaring Spring, Blair county. The building contained the blacksmith shop of Henderson Gorsuch, the wagon manufactory of Elmer E. Green and a blank book manufactory owned by Messrs. D. M. Bare and H. C. Lorenz. The total loss is $40,000, of which $28,000 is on the book manufactory. Seventy-five persons employed in the last mentioned establishment will be thrown out of work.

—The people who go to the Centennial will not have the opportunity to see the Hon. W. E. Gladstone, of England, as he has declined to attend. His refusal is based on the reason that he desires to husband his strength for the Home Rule warfare which he is waging. Should he come to this country he would be "killed with kindness," and he is not yet ready to end his life in any way.

—The regular base ball nine and the Fleming nine again tried conclusions on the Fair ground, Friday afternoon. The score was 14 to 12 in favor of the regular nine. These games are close enough to be quite interesting and are useful in keeping the boys in practice.

—The regular session of court will begin in Lock Haven on the 26th instant. At that time Luther Schaffer, who is now in jail, will probably be tried for the murder of Mr. and Mrs. Culvey. A preliminary hearing took place on Friday afternoon.

—The lively manner in which the telephone exchange people were bringing lumber from the planing mill to their headquarters, on Friday, convinces us that some important building operations are in progress.

Old and reliable Medicines are the best to depend upon. Acker's Blood Elixir has been prescribed for years for all impurities of the Blood. In every form of Scrofulous, Syphilitic or Mercurial diseases, it is invaluable. For Rheumatism, has no equal. WALTER W. BAYARD.

—The late Mr. William I. Curtin was born at Curtins Works on the 22d day of March, 1853. His death occurred at 10 minutes after 10 o'clock, Tuesday morning, September 13. His age was 34 years, 5 months and 21 days.

—Soon after the 12 o'clock dinner hour on Sunday the rain began to fall, at first so fine as to be scarcely noticable. But the drops grew larger and soon quite a heavy rain was in progress which at times was violent. It continued all the afternoon and evening and we trust that all cisterns are full by this time.

—Oh, how dismal Tuesday for the laying of the corner stone of the school house in Philipsburg! About twenty of the Knights Templar were taken to Tyrone that morning by the construction train and there met the regular train for Philipsburg. Rev. D. S. Monroe, D. D., delivered the principal address.

—How are the desks in the new school building? They looked all right on a cursory inspection, but there is a question whether they are large enough for overgrown pupils. Remember that Bellefonte, though small for its age, is decidedly large for its size, and the population—even the young children—are of similar proportions. Don't squeeze them into seats too small for them.

—People whose houses are provided with steam heating apparatus—and nothing else of a warm character—are in a quandary such chilly days as Sunday. All the heat is restricted to the range located, perhaps, in the summer kitchen entirely removed from the house proper. Hence, they are compelled to wrap themselves closely and warmly in blanket shawls and sit and shiver.

Death of William I. Curtin.

The friends of Mr. William I. Curtin, in this place, were shocked on Tuesday to learn of his death, which occurred at quarter to 10 o'clock a. m., in Philipsburg He had been ill since Thursday and on Friday he was not expected to live during the day. He revived, however, and it was confidently expected that he would fully recover. A change for the worse took place during Monday night, and the intelligence was received that morning that because of his feeble condition it would be impossible to bring him home at present. This was followed by the announcement of his death. Friends were with him during his illness. His remains were brought to Bellefonte Tuesday evening.

"Will," as he was generally called, was born in 1853, and consequently was in 35th year. He was a son of Roland and Eliza Curtin. He lived with his widowed mother in this place. Ever since the writer has resided in Bellefonte he has been acquainted with the deceased and knew him to be a man of frank, open disposition and generous impulses. He was very widely known and the social circles of the town and vicinity will miss him greatly. To his mother the event will be a most prostrating one, as her affections were largely centred in him. His relatives, to all of whom his death will be a bereavement, have our earnest sympathy.

Must Have a License.

The supreme court has just handed down its first decision under the act of 1881, which provides that no physician can practice in a county without first registering therein. The decision is of great importance to medical men, as the act was passed owing to the efforts of the recognized schools of medicine to prevent the growing evil of traveling quacks. In the case passed upon by the supreme court, however, there is no charge that the defendant is other than a reputable physician, the only allegation being that he practiced in a county where he was not registered.

The case passed upon is that of Dr. John Ege, who was found guilty of practicing in Lebanon county without being registered therein. Dr. Ege resided in Reading, Berks county, where he was registered, but would occasionally go to Lebanon county, where he would rent an office for a short period and receive patients.

The court held that a physician duly registered, residing and practicing in one county, but having also an office in another county, of which he made advertisement, and where he received and prescribed for patients without being there registered, is a sojourner within the meaning of the act of 1881, and is therefore guilty of a violation of the act. The language of the act applies to all physicians, whether residing out of the State or within it. Dr. Ege carried the case to the supreme court, who, however, affirmed the decision of the lower court.

Origin of a Phrase.

The phrase, "The Government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth," is one of the most famous in existence. It was used by President Lincoln in his Gettysburg speech and made a fitting close for an oration which is itself famous. The phrase, however, was not original with Mr. Lincoln. In an old Wickliffe Bible published in 1524 is found this declaration: "This Bible is for the government of the people, by the people and for the people." In an address before the New England Anti-Slavery convention in Boston, May 29, 1850, Theodore Parker defined, this government as "a government of all the people, by all the people, for all the people." Substantially the same phrase was used by Judge Joel Parker in the Massachusetts Constitutional Convention in 1853. A phrase almost exactly similar was used by a public speaker in Switzerland in 1836.

—At the re-union of the Veteran Association of this county at Coburn, on Saturday, George M. Boal, of Centre Hall, was the presiding officer. He is the Vice-President of the Association. Governor Beaver is the President, but he could not be present, We have already alluded to the address of welcome delivered by that eloquent gentleman, Col. James P. Coburn. Col. D. S. Keller responded on behalf of the assembled veterans, who were accorded such a warm hospitality. He interspersed his courteous remarks with war reminiscences which revived the ardor and patriotism of the blue-coated men who listened to them. Mr. R. A. Cassidy, who is always interesting on such occasions, was particularly so in a speech he made during the afternoon. The present officers were re-elected, and the Association decided to hold the next re-union at Milesburg.

Imposing Ceremonies.

The laying of the corner stone of the new school house in Philipsburg, on Tuesday, was in every respect a ceremony of much interest, and the excellent arrangements were carried out without any change in the programme. The afternoon was pleasant, and the exercises could be thoroughly enjoyed by the large number of people present. The ritual ceremony under the auspices of the Masonic fraternity added much to the interest which always attaches to such proceedings and gave additional solemnity and impressiveness to it. The address delivered by D. S. Monroe, D. D., occupied thirty-five minutes in its delivery, and was in keeping with the importance of the occasion. We are gratified to know that so much importance is attached to the great cause of education by the people of Philipsburg. It is an augury of good to that handsome town. We hope that the erection of the building will proceed uninterruptedly; that it may be a credit architecturally to the town, and that important results for good may result from it.

One of Sunday's Sermons.

Our town is much favored in the excellence of the pulpit lessons which congregations receive Sunday after Sunday. In brightness of thought and utterance, crispness and brilliancy of composition, those delivered by Rev. W. H. H. Snyder, in the Reformed church, are models. Such was a sermon on Sunday morning from Romans 12: 11—"Net slothful in business; fervent in spirit; serving the Lord."

He remarked that the Bible is full of that uncommon kind of sense which we call common sense. The text meant that we should do with diligence whatever we have to do. The word "business," as commonly understood, is too contracted in its meaning. There is no room in God's kingdom for the slothful. Man had to labor even before the fall. It was Adam's duty to take care of Eden. Labor came rather as a blessing than a curse. It is better to have too many irons in the fire than none at all. It is not revolution, but friction, that wears the machinery. Steady labor with a purpose is beneficial; spasmodic effort hurtful.

The above are a few of the bright thoughts and pointed sentences which he uttered under the first division of his sermon, Those under the third division, "Serving the Lord," were of a similar character, and some of them were beautiful. For instance, he said that angels can travel up and down a hod carrier's ladder as truly as they did Jacob's ladder of old. Every man who pursues his occupation with ardor and with the proper motives is "called" just as truly as is the minister in the pulpit. He said that no man in good health has a right to retire from business. He may possess a competence, but if he has all he needs he should still work on and give the fruits of his labors to advance Christ's kingdom.

The above are only a few of many practical thoughts in a discourse which was replete with good things, affording abundant food for reflection.

Lutheran Council.

A council of the Lutheran church was held in Greenville, Pa., last week.

At the morning session on Friday devotional services were conducted by Dr. Haas, of New York City. The special order of business being the consideration of ministerial acts, the Church Book Committee, charged with the revision of the liturgical form, a part of whose report has been considered at previous conventions, presented a form of marriage ceremony. Dr. Schumacker, Secretary of the Committee, stated that over 50 forms had been considered by them, and that one was chosen which was in general use during the sixteenth century. The morning session was spent in discussing and adopting this form.

At the afternoon session the German Home Mission Committee reported; through its Secretary, Rev. Weiskatton, of Philadelphia. This committee has 19 missionaries in the field laboring in Canada, Michigan, Nebraska, Texas, New York and Pennsylvania: $5,457 had been received and $5,454 had been disbursed. Ten young men had been sent over from Pastor Paulson's institution at Krupp, Germany. The committee asked the council to determine whether it should not enter into a legal contract with Pastor Paulson for pecuniary support, which request was referred to a committee. Rev. Mr. Weir, District Secretary of the National Reform Association, was granted the privilege of addressing the council in reference to the work of the association. His address was eloquent and well received.

—Mansill's Planetary and Storm Signal gives the principal storm and electric earth disturbing dates for September as located about the 10th and 15th—Saturday to Wednesday; 17th to 22nd—Saturday to Thursday; 26th to 28th—Monday to Wednesday. The worst storm of the month will occur about Venus' inferior conjunction, the 21st; but this will be called an equinoctial storm. The storms will be strong and severe from the 17th to the 23d, although the month should average a fine one. In regard to the present weather Mansill has predicted correctly—The storm disturbance began on Saturday and culminated in a heavy rain Sunday afternoon and night, and repeated Tuesday morning. He gauges his weather prediction from the position and motion of the planets at certain periods.

—Shaffer, Johnston and James and Essec Kline, who will be tried on the 26th inst. for the murder of Isaiah and Nora Culvey, will be defended by Messrs Abrams, Holihan and Myers. T. C. Hipple, Esq., will aid District Attorney Brown in the prosecution.

—A lad named David Carson, who was employed at one of the mine banks near town, was so unfortunate as to break one of his legs a few days ago. We have not heard how the accident occurred.

An Incident of the Picnic.

It came to pass that several good-looking and genial young gentlemen of this place went to the reunion at Coburn. They did not encumber themselves with any dinner, trusting to that good fortune which had never deserted them on previous occasions to provide them with all they wanted for the inner young gentlemen. Very skillfully they manœuvred, but the dinner hour had arrived and with it the assurance of a sumptuous meal failed to materialize. One of the number endowed with many physical—not to say superior mental—graces, volunteered to "work the racket." Approaching a party of two persons who were arranging a substantial picnic spread, he proceeded to expedite the arrangements with a real caterer's skill. He spread the snowy table cloth in the most fashionable mode; he opened the pickle jars, in doing which his knife blade snapped in twain. But ignoring the loss which the broken steel might occasion him, he kept on with the work. At length the appetizing lunch was spread and his appetite as well as that of his companions, a short distance off, was at flood tide. He was about seating himself at the feast and winking to his companion to advance, when the proprietress of the good things remarked: "Thank you for your help; but this feast is for the Boalsburg band. If you calkerlate on having any of it you are mightily mistaken." With disappointment depicted on every line of their expressive countenances, the party wondered onward, until at last they found some young ladies who sympathized with them sufficiently to take them in.

No Changes Caused by the Powell Failure.

As will be noticed by the following, which comes to us from Saxton, Pa., where Robert Hare Powell's Sons & Co. are erecting new iron furnaces, their recent assignment has caused no change in their business at that place:

The situation of affairs about the extensive works of Robert Hare Powell's Sons & Co., at this place, remains to all outward observation the same as a week ago. The furnace and coke ovens, coal and ore banks are running on full time, work is continued as speedily as possible on the erection of the new furnace, and to an on-looker there is nothing to indicate the firm's embarrassment. Reports from the company's offices in Philadelphia are favorable to continuing of the works, as they say they have new orders for 35,000 tons of iron at good prices. When the new furnace is completed the plant at this place will have a capacity of 170 tons of iron a day, and the guaranteed orders now on hand will keep both furnaces running for one year. However, in view of the fluctuation of the iron market there is no telling what may happen, and business men place no implicit dependence as to the probable result.

In Clearfield county where the company operate extensive coal lands orders have been received similar to those received here—that work will be continued as heretofore, but under the control of the Guarantee Trust and Safe Deposit Company. The new operations of the company near Ramey, that county, have all been stopped, and no improvements will be made under the assignees.

The Huntingdon Centennial.

The committee having in charge the arrangements for the centennial celebration in Huntingdon, on the 21st, 22d and 23d of the present month, make the following final announcement:

We have arranged for the celebration with a liberal hand—an event of this kind deserves it—and the committee have not hesitated to assume any necessary responsibility in order to insure success. We believe the arrangements are thorough and complete for the most distinguished celebration that has ever been held in Central Pennsylvania. The committee have arranged for excursion rates and special trains upon the railroad and the people of the county seat will decorate their houses and arch their streets, and welcome with cordial hand the hosts that will come to express their grateful appreciation of the blessings of "a hundred years."

Prof. R. E. Cambridge, of Unionville, departed last Thursday to resume the principalship of the schools at South Philipsburg, at quite an advance in salary. Among the veterans who attended the re-union of the Veteran Association of Centre county at Coburn on Saturday was Capt. W. C. VanValin, of Unionville. The accident which happened to him about three months ago continues to render his ankle quite weak and he can walk only with the assistance of a crutch and cane. But he determined to attend the re-union if possible. Returning, he remained in Bellefonte all day Sunday.

William C. Mayne, Esq., a Philadelphia attorney, was in Bellefonte lately and Mr. William J. Maloney, who is usually known as "the fighting councilman from the First Ward," Philadelphia, accompanied him. Mr. Maloney is now, however, a "reformer of reformers" in that august body, the Philadelphia council. The two gentlemen took depositions that day before Hon. John B. Linn and then had the rest of the day to themselves. We speak from actual experience when we say that we know Mr. Mayne to be one of those bright, agreeable gentlemen who are so well calculated to enjoy themselves any place and especially in Bellefonte.

Consequently, he must sell his property and move away with his family. He expects to go in about two weeks. He is a valuable man in the electric light business and his services are in demand. His new position is a much more profitable one with even less labor, which has induced him to accept it. We regret his departure.

Two Deaths.

We hear with regret of the death on Monday morning, at half-past 11 o'clock, of Mr. Daniel Kerlin, the farmer for the Messrs. Brockerhoff, on the latter's property near Roopsburg. —It is real easy for Judge A. O. Furst to hold court. All he has to do is to find a seat and the lawyers come before him, take off their hats and make their speeches; then he supplies them with unlimited quantities of justice. It is convenient for the members of the bar to have the President Judge so accessible and unceremonious. We read how in ancient days court was held at the gates of the city, and this simplicity affords sort of a modern representation of those early days—a survival of the antique, as it were.

—The county convention of the Union Labor party will meet in the Court House, in this place, on the 5th of October. The formal call will be published in a few days. The Labor organizations, Grangers, and other similar organizations are invited.
